NAZIS BOMB SHETLANDS

LONDON, Nov. 13 (INS)—Four German bombing planes flew over the Shetland Islands north of Scotland today and dropped a number of bombs.

German planes made reconnaissance flights over the Shetland area on Saturday, apparently in anticipation of today's raid.

There was no immediate information as to the damage done by the bombs.

DUTCH ASK U. S. AID FOR PEACE

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands, Nov. 13 (INS) — The United States entered the new European peace drive today with revelation that Queen Wilhelmina conferred for 30 minutes last night with American Minister George A. Gordon at the Royal Palace in The Hague.

While the topic discussed was not revealed officially, British sources said it was believed that peace moves were considered.

The Queen and Gordon conferred simultaneously with a meeting between the foreign ministers of the Netherlands and Belgium at Breda, Holland, at which the British and French replies to the mediation bid of Wilhelmina and King Leopold of the Belgians were closely examined.

It was understood that the two diplomats searched the replies of King George VI of Britain and President Albert Lebrun of France for openings that might lead to further peace efforts.

An official announcement said merely that the foreign ministers "conferred regarding political questions."

CONFER AT BREDA

Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak arrived at Breda late last night from Brussels and went into conference immediately with Dutch Foreign Minister E. N. Van Kleffens.

There were reports Wilhelmina and Leopold might hold another meeting if their ministers find prospects for further mediatory efforts to end the European war.

Intense speculation along this line was aroused by the reported conference between Wilhelmina and Gordon.

(Reports from Washington last night said President Roosevelt was considering the advisability of some move to prevent Holland from becoming involved in the European conflict.

(These advices indicated the Roosevelt administration was especially concerned over results of a possible German conquest of the

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Nov. 13 (INS)—Nazi Germany charged today that Great Britain and France have "sabotaged" the peace effort of Queen Wilhelmina and King Leopold by the very nature of their replies, while Chancellor Hitler spent the day drafting his own acknowledgment of the mediation offer.

Officials declined to disclose the nature of the Fuehrer's reply, but a government spokesman said:

"The British and French replies together represent a challenge to the German nation. Together with the speech of Winston Churchill (British first lord of the admiralty) they reveal that Britain's war aim is destruction of the Reich.

"The allies have deliberately sabotaged the latest peace move while trying to throw a smokescreen around England's war guilt."

SEE MOVE AS FUTILE

Other informed sources went so far as to characterize the replies of King George and President Albert Lebrun as "impertinent and impudent."

It was believed that Hitler's own reply to the mediation offer would comprise a grateful acknowledgment of these efforts for peace, but would point out that all such overtures are futile "now that England and France have given their answer."

With the British and French replies already on record, Hitler conferred for hours with his closest advisers, framing the German reply. Strict secrecy surrounded the Fuehrer's deliberations, but informed quarters said he was according the Wilhelmina-Leopold peace bid "very careful examination."

In addition, the British and French replies were undergoing a close scrutiny, but no comment was forthcoming regarding them.

Exactly when the German reply will be dispatched to The Hague and Brussels remained a secret known only to high German officials.

OFFENSIVE DELAYED

It appeared, however, that there probably would be no major military activity on land or at sea until this diplomatic matter has received the full and complete attention of the German government.

While the question of peace received the Reich's "most earnest consideration," Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels accused Britain of attempting to assassinate Hitler by means of a "bomb thrown by a clique of criminals."

Simultaneously it was announced that the identity of two manufacturing firms which "came into question as makers of the clockwork parts of the bomb" has been ascertained through investigation of Wednesday's Munich beer hall explosion.

CHARGES BRITISH PLOT

Goebbels charged Britain tried to instigate the assassination of Hitler after failing to "drive a wedge between the Fuehrer and the German people." His statement added:

"This foul crime committed by our enemies did not succeed in its aim and it could not have succeeded.

"Our intuition tells us that justice would cease to exist in this world if we Germans would be prevented from attaining our goal by a bomb thrown by a clique of criminals."

2 PARIS AIR RAIDS REPULSED

PARIS, Nov. 13 (INS)—For the second time in 12 hours, the anti-aircraft guns of Paris opened up this afternoon to repel invading German airplanes which appeared directly over the capital for the first time since the war began.

The first bursts of anti-aircraft fire from the guns of the capital itself were heard between 4:20 and 5:15 a. m., during which time the entire population of the city took refuge in bombproof shelters.

The firing was heard again shortly before 3:30 p. m. There was no immediate indication that any bombs had been dropped.

This morning's air raid warnings aroused the populace from slumber. It was not until 55 minutes later that the "all clear" sounded.

British Planes Bomb Nazi Sub

LONDON, Nov. 13 (INS)—British planes of the coastal reconnaissance command yesterday attacked and hit a German U-boat at some unidentified spot off the British coast, the air ministry announced today.

A salvo of bombs were dropped to port and starboard when the submarine was sighted on the surface, the announcement said. The pilot of one of the planes said he believed he scored a direct hit on the boat's periscope as the vessel submerged.

Rough sea and broken water made it impossible to ascertain the exact amount of the damage.

Parley Fails; Finns Will Leave Moscow

HELSINKI, Nov. 13 (AP)—The Finnish foreign office announced today its delegation in Moscow would leave for home tonight, suspending the lengthy negotiations by which Russia has been seeking concessions from Finland.

Previously, Foreign Minister Eljas Erkko had said that only "last minute" modification of Soviet demands for territorial concessions could prevent recall of the Finns from Moscow.

The negotiations were initiated Oct. 7 after Russia had won concessions from Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania, strengthening her military position in the west and north.

Moscow discussion of the Russian demands in the past five days has consisted of an exchange of notes on minor points.

The returning delegation is scheduled to arrive in Helsinki Wednesday. It had been given authority to return whenever there appeared to be no hope of further progress.

"There are no indications that further progress through negotiations is possible," Erkko said in an interview. "There is a last minute chance, but we have come so far it is difficult."

Asked whether the negotiations might be resumed later in event of a breakdown, Erkko replied:

"That depends on circumstances."

The foreign minister did not specify the points on which the negotiations were stalled. Observers expressed belief, however, that the stumbling blocks were Russia's demands for a naval base on Finnish territory at the entrance to the Gulf of Finland and revision of the southern border between the two countries on the Karelian Isthmus.

Erkko hinted at this interpretation when he said to an American newspaperman:

"I believe there is a place called Sandy Hook outside New York harbor. How would you like to hand that over to some one?"

He shrugged off as "part of the game" a weekend barrage of Russian press attacks on Finland's "obstinacy," but added:

"When press attacks are inspired we have to take them into consideration as part of the discussion."

The Russian press comment included a warning from the newspaper Trud, Soviet Trade Union that Finland is playing "a dangerous game" which "may have grave results."

An article in the Red Fleet, Russian naval newspaper, said that to protect Leningrad the Soviet must gain control of both sides of the Gulf of Finland as well as Finnish areas on the Arctic Coast west of Murmansk.

Finland now has access to the Arctic ocean through a narrow strip of land between Norway and Russia.

The Russian-Finnish talks were initiated Oct. 7 by Russia after she had gained the right to establish new navel, military and air bases in the Baltic through concessions from Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

Triple Probe as Dowd Sends in Resignation

Deals involving $60,000 to $90,000, part of the basis for the Boston Bar Association's charges of job selling and conspiracy in Suffolk County, were placed under the spotlight today as Governor Saltonstall formally accepted the resignation of John F. Dowd as sheriff of Suffolk County. Although the association dropped its proceedings coincidental with the resignation the results of its probe and the accompanied charges made by the original instigators of the investigation into Dowd's conduct of office will be placed in the hands of the grand jury, Dist.-Atty. William J. Foley said today.

DANIEL A. WHELTON
Takes Over Dowd Post

Following a conference with Frederic H. Chase, president of the Bar Association, the district attorney said he would present to the jury all evidence gathered by that body in the cases of both Dowd and John Patrick Connolly, who resigned last July while under fire from his post as clerk of superior civil court.

Later Judge Chase brought a mass of documentary evidence in the case to the district attorney's office.

Foley said the first witnesses would be questioned tomorrow morning with a view to presenting evidence to the grand jury late this week.

TRIPLE PROBE OPENED

Dowd's resignation was submitted to the governor and a triple probe of his conduct in office launched as the Supreme Court was asked to dismiss charges brought against him by the Boston Bar Association.

Dowd, with his wife, was on the way to California as the Boston Finance Commission, the city auditor's office and the district attorney swung into action.

After the Governor had accepted the sheriff's resignation, Daniel A. Whelton, a deputy sheriff for 20 years, became acting sheriff and within 24 hours will be bonded for $60,000. This is the third time in his long service Whelton has been acting sheriff.

No sooner had Deputy Sheriff James G. Morris delivered the resignation to the State House than

Tobin in Bed With Bad Cold

Mayor Maurice J. Tobin was confined to his bed today, suffering from a severe cold contracted Saturday afternoon while reviewing the American Legion Armistice Day parade at City Hall.

The mayor attempted to go to his office, but felt so ill he returned to bed upon advice of his wife and physician.

AT LAST! BIG SNOW CRUISER REACHES ARMY BASE HERE

After fully five minutes of tricky maneuvering before a crowd of thousands, the juggernaut snow cruiser of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition today rolled into the Army Base in South Boston to be partially dismantled and loaded aboard the transport North Star.

Their 1000-mile ordeal from Chicago to Boston over at last, the crew of the mighty Penguin I climbed out of the huge vehicle to take a brief respite before commencing the last, and perhaps the most delicate task of all—loading the great snow ship on the North Star.

Preparations were begun to cut through the heavy girders holding the 17-foot tail of the 51-foot cruiser from the main body, which is to be chained to the forward deck of the ship.

Meanwhile, as the Army transport Gen. P. W. Gurney saluted the arrival with a blast of her whistle, Dr. Thomas G. Poulter emerged from his control tower on the craft to be greeted by Capt. Isak Lystad, skipper of the North Star.

Dr. Poulter, who designed the Penguin and piloted her throughout most of her long trek half across the country, expressed general satisfaction at the trip, which was

Teacher In Love Cult Quiz Quits

Chairman W. Gerry Martin, of the Marblehead school committee, announced following a special meeting of the board today that Miss Helen C. Eastland, 39-year-old teacher in the junior high school, had resigned.

According to the chairman, the resignation was dated last Friday, but with Saturday a holiday and Sunday intervening, no action on it could be taken by the board until today.

The resignation ends, Chairman Martin said, the probe by the school board and the district attorney's office into charges by Mrs. Virginia Phillips that her 15-year-old daughter, Florence Bigelow, a junior high school pupil, committed suicide because of a morbid relationship between the girl and a woman teacher.

Today's 8 a. m. meeting of the school board was a surprise.

Miss Eastland, following a meeting of the committee on Friday night, was ordered to remain away from her classes until after the next meeting of the board, set for tonight.

It had been hinted that a number of pupils had planned to strike if this action had not been taken.

SALEM GRADUATE

Miss Eastland was graduated from Salem Normal school in 1921 and began her teaching career at Quincy in 1921-22.

From 1922 to 1926 she taught in Lynn schools, and was appointed to the Marblehead teaching staff in 1926, in the Glover elementary school.

When the junior high was inaugurated three years ago she was transferred and made a teacher in "social studies" at the junior high.

WOMAN IS KILLED UNDER TUBE TRAIN

From a platform crowded with passengers, an attractive young mother plunged to death today under the wheels of a subway train in Central sq. station, Cambridge.

Just as the two-car train hurtled into the station the woman dropped into the pit and three trucks passed over her before Motorman Edgar McLeod could bring the train to a stop.

The woman was identified by police as Mrs. Myrtle Tupper of Norfolk st., Cambridge, mother of a seven-months-old daughter, Harriet. Her husband, Harry, a chef, was at work in Quincy at the time of the tragedy.

HAD DIZZY SPELLS

Neighbors said Mrs. Tupper had complained often of dizzy spells.

Because the train wheels had marred her so badly the station was cleared of passengers and other trains emptied before firemen and a Boston Elevated rescue crew began the task of jacking the train to remove the body. It was necessary to use an acetylene torch to cut away part of the train.

Dr. Harold Groden of the Cambridge City Hospital, who was called to the scene, said the young mother must have died instantly. The Rev. James Maginnis of the Blessed Sacrament Church gave her the last rites of the church.

Subway power was shut off for an hour after the accident, and train service was completely tied up.

WOMAN FAINTS

Alpheus J. Ward of Marcella st., Roxbury, told officers he was standing behind Mrs. Tupper.

"We waited about 5 minutes for the train," he said. "Then it came roaring into the station. When it was about 20 feet way the woman suddenly went down before it, her head hitting the third rail.

"It was a terrible sight. Everybody was screaming, and a woman beside me fainted."

It is bad enough to find an important part of your automobile stolen, but when the identical part is sold to you by the man who stole it, well that's a little too much.

So Arthur Shay, 22, of Mechanic st., Brighton, paid a 25 fine in Brighton district court today when found guilty of stealing a rotor from the distributor of a car owned by Eugene M. McLean, who had parked in Market st., Saturday night.

McLean could not start his car. Shay discovered the trouble and offered a rotor for sale. McLean became suspicious. Shay was turned over to the gendarmes.

Tells of $50,000 Loan in Radio War

Before a federal court room crowd which included prominent politicians, John J. McCann, of Lowell, treasurer of the newly formed Mayflower Broadcasting Corp., today testified that he borrowed $50,000 on a demand note to finance his purchase of stock in the corporation.

With $35,000 he bought his own 350 shares of stock, and with the rest he took half the responsibility for the holdings of Lawrence J. Flynn of Boston, scheduled to manage the Mayflower station if it is successful in its appeal to the Federal Communications Commission for the wave length now used by WAAB, he testified.

Station WAAB has been the target of bitter political criticism since the 1937 mayoralty campaign, when Leland Bickford, editor of the station's news service, strongly suported Mayor Tobin and blasted candidates Curley, Foley and Nichols.

McCann's testimony came as the hearing on the Mayflower Corp.'s application for a broadcasting license was resumed before Trial Examiner George B. Porter, with former Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield and former Cambridge mayor and Congressman Richard M. Russell waiting to be called back to the stand.

Both Mansfield and Russell have accused Station WAAB, one of the key stations of the Yankee Network, of sponsoring attacks on them.

Asked if he had been called on for payments on the $50,000 note, McCann replied that he had not, but he expected to pay it off by borrowing on or selling an invention of his designed to improve the process of wool manufacture.

Attorney James W. Gum, representing the Mayflower Corp., tried to get a description of the invention into the record, but was blocked by Paul D. P. Spearman, counsel for WAAB.

Spearman objected on the ground that a patent may not be published, under the laws covering patents, and that a patent which has not been fully recorded is "not worth a continental."

He finally allowed McCann to give a general description of the invention, however, and his hopes with regard to it.

"I represent only myseelf."

He then described the corporation's setup, with George R. Dunham as president, himself as treasurer, and Flynn as "clerk." Flynn, he said, is slated to assume management of the station.

First witness of the day was Lawrey Witer of Auburndale, a patent attorney with an office in Federal st., who established that McCann had applied for patents on his tertile invention.

When Gum tried to get Witer to describe the invention, he was met with sharp objections from Spearman.

POPE SPEAKS TO U. S. ON CHRISTIAN YOUTH

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 13 (AP via Radio)—Pope Pius XII, speaking today by radio to the people of the United States, said "the Christian education" of youth was never "more vital or important than it is today."

The Pontiff spoke on the occasion of the 50th anniversary celebration of the Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C., from his private studio. He talked approximately seven minutes.

RECALLS VISIT TO U. S.

His address was directed particularly to the gathering of prelates, priests and distinguished laymen at the university, and he told them of his "pride in the great work you have accomplished for the glory of God and the welfare of your country."

The Pope, then Cardinal Pacelli and Secretary of State at the Vatican, visited the United States in 1936, traveling across the continent and back by airplane.

He recalled this visit briefly today, noting it had been "our pleasure" to have had the "good fortune" to see what is being done at the university.

"We bless the episcopacy over the United States to whose enlightenment and zeal the university is a monument," he said.

EDUCATION VITAL NEED

"We bless the professors, students and all the faithful, and epecially those who in any way helped this noble institution to endure and flourish."

He was "genuinely happy," the pontiff said, to offer his praise hopeful that "it may encourage and strengthen you to pursue the noble but arduous mission which the university fulfills."

He added:

"The Christian education of youth was never of more decisive or vital importance than it is today, when we are faced with the bewildering errors of nationalism and materialism which are plunging the world into war, evidencing themselves in the horribleness of a philosophy builded on purely human standards."

'Quake Rocks Seattle, Hundreds Flee Homes

SEATTLE, Nov. 13 (AP)—An earthquake described by University of Washington geologists as the heaviest in their seismograph's records rocked large areas of the Pacific Northwest shortly before midnight.

Officials and businessmen in Portland, Tacoma, Seattle, Vancouver, B. C., and other cities surveyed damage caused by the shock that lasted approximately one minute.

Damage, however, was not expected to be great, consisting mostly of cracked walls in some buildings, broken water mains and broken power lines. A check by state and other officials indicated no one was injured.

In all parts of Seattle residents rushed to the streets in their night attire and many spent the remainder of the night in auto camps.

A section of the National Bank of Washington in Tacoma, crashed six floors into an alley.

N. M. Breck, Capitol watchman, said it felt as "though the whole building was jumping up and down." He said it broke some glass but did no serious damage.

Widen Clue Search In O'Hare Slaying

CHICAGO, Nov. 13 (AP)—Investigators set off in three directions today in their effort to solve the shotgun slaying of Edward J. O'Hare, wealthy president of Sportsman's Park race track.

"The case with a thousand angles," as police Capt. Daniel Gilbert called it, appeared to be broadening, instead of narrowing, in its scope of inquiry.

Chief Deputy Coroner Anthony Prusinski and his investigators turned their attention to papers found in a tastefully furnished North Side apartment, with iron barred windows, which they discovered yesterday and described as O'Hare's secret retreat, maintained in addition to his home in suburban Glencoe and rooms at the Illinois Athletic Club and at Sportsman's clubhouse.

Assistant State's Attorney Robert Wright concentrated on O'Hare's safety deposit boxes for clues, hoping to find a list of stockholders of the National Jockey Club which O'Hare headed.

Capt. Gilbert, of the state's attorney's staff, wanted to further question relatives and associates of O'Hare who was "rubbed out" in typical gangland style last Wednesday. The captain said also he was hunting for questioning old members of Al Capone's gang.

Capt. Gilbert's investigators told newsmen of a new underworld report that Capone had been "angry" at O'Hare for two years and had let him know it. Capone originally owned Sportsman's Park and also the old Hawthorne Dog Track which O'Hare once managed.

UNWED MOTHER GETS OFFERS OF NAME, HOME

Kathryn Hilliard, 21-year-old unwed mother of a baby girl who appealed to the Boston Daily Record and the Boston Evening American for aid last week, today had scores of offers of marriage, or a home, or both.

Although most of the letters received were from lonely men, one came from a Newburyport couple who have children of their own, offering their home as a shelter for mother and baby and promising help for them until the unwed girl finds a job.

Another of the letters came from a 30-year-old New Bedford man who wrote that his own sister had been the victim of a plight similar to that of Miss Hilliard's.

His sister, he wrote, is now happily married.

"I was just like a father to her baby until my sister married," he wrote. "She has a fine husband now and is very happy. I always thought that when I married I would like to help someone like my sister who needed help."

A 31-year-old Byfield farmer, a widower with six children, offered Miss Hilliard a position as housekeeper with board, room and $3 a week.

A Fremont, N. H., man wrote: "My heart goes out to you and your baby in your trouble. I am not rich, but I am willing to share what I have with you."

Among others who offered aid were a Gloucester fisherman, a Windsor, Vt., railroad man, a Brockton musician and a 21-year-old Brattleboro, Vt., man.

AUSTIN WARNS OF 3D TERM

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (INS)—Senator Warren R. Austin, Vermont Republican, today warned that a third term for President Roosevelt might result from undue impeding of the national administration's foreign policy as laid down in the recently enacted neutrality act.

"One of the gravest dangers to the permanency of our system of limited powers," Austin told the Women's National Republican Club, "would be the inauguration of a third term for the President of the United States.

"The selection of a candidate by the Democratic party is something in which the Republican party cannot and does not desire to consciously participate.

"Nevertheless, the Republican party could do much to bring this calamity upon America in 1940 if it should hinder, impede and weaken the arm of the present administration in executing our foreign policy.

"In my opinion such conduct on our part would tempt the voters of America to sacrifice the wise precedent of limited terms for the Chief Executive, in both the Democratic nomination and the subsequent election."

Rothermere Reveals Gifts to Princess

LONDON, Nov. 13 (AP)—Lord Rothermere testified today that he had paid Princess Stefanie Hohenlohe-Waldenburg about $250,000, from 1932 to 1938 and said he "thought she was treating me with an utter lack of chivalry" when she sent him gifts and also the bills for them.

Rothermere, testifying in defense against the princess' suit for alleged breach of contract, said he had paid her "considerably more" than £51,000 before his retirement in 1938 when he was 70 and "did not contemplate any more political missions" such as those for which he had employed the princess.

The princess, a Hungarian, charges that Rothermere, noted publisher, had broken a contract by which she said she was to receive £5000 (about $20,000) annually for acting as his political representative in Europe.

Rothermere said he offered to contribute to funds for restoration of the Hapsburgs because "Hungary was so poor that she could not re-establish a monarchy without a proper income," and added "It was a great pity it didn't come off."

He said his campaign for friendship with Nazi Germany "was before Hitler ran amok" and retorted "I am not a sovereign state yet" when asked if the princess had acted as his "ambassador."

He denounced as "preposterous" the suggestion that he had agreed to keep the princess "for the rest of her life," and added, "there was no opportunity of 'giving' her money because she was always asking for it."

"The princess," he continued, "would become dumb if she didn't talk about money. She was always pestering and badgering me so I sent her away to Budapest and Berlin."

"But it surely was a little tough on Hitler . . . ?" asked the princess attorney.

"Oh, I'm not sorry," Rothermere replied, "Hitler richly deserved it. In 1935 I thought Hitler really wanted peace above everything. I was wrong and so was half the population."

The publisher agreed that when the princess went to Berlin on his behalf he "expected her to live like a queen," but denied that he ever told her "I never let a woman down."

"I never say that sort of thing," he commented.

Jail 2 Boys In Car Theft

Two Boston youths were fined $110 each and given three months each in the Dedham House of Correction today on charges of misappropriating an auto, drunkenness, drunken driving and driving after their licenses had been suspended.

Alfred C. Phillips of Noanet st., and Joseph Parlin of Walnut st., were arrested early today on Route 1 in Walpole when a state police trooper saw their car weaving from one side of the street to the other.

Police said the pair were wanted on warrants issued to Boston and Westwood police. They will be turned over to these authorities after they finish serving the sentence imposed by Judge George F. James in Walpole.

MAY LIFT BROWDER TALK BAN

The Harvard University Corporation called a meeting today to reconsider the withdrawal of permission for Earl Browder, indicted American Communist leader, to speak before the John Reed Society at Harvard.

Browder was to have addressed the organization until a ban was placed by Jerome D. Greene, secretary of the university, after the well-known Communist was indicted for traveling under a false passport.

Greene maintained his appearance would be a breach of "taste" and not in keeping with tradition at Harvard.

Announcement of the meeting to reconsider was made by President James B. Conant, following a petition of 400 students who want Browder to speak.

Police to Return Couple to Falmouth

FALMOUTH, Nov. 13—Police Chief Harold R. Baker will leave for Charlotte, N. C., today to bring back Carolyn G. Smith, 15, and Wallace R. Cahoon, Jr., 17, both of North Falmouth, who have been missing from their homes since Nov. 4.

A message from Charlotte police said the young couple had been picked up there without funds after hitch-hiking their way South.

TRUE LOVE WILL FIND A WAY---AND DOES

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (INS)—Flags of truce fluttered between the Yale Club and the East river tonight as communications passed between representatives of George Lowther, the wealthy habeas corpus sweetheart, and Eileen Herrick, the social satellite, whom he said was a prisoner of her parents.

George had charged that Mr. and Mrs. Walter Herrick had sidetracked and stalled his marriage to Eileen by keeping her incommunicado in their home in East End ave. He showed a letter from her saying she had been kept incommunicado in the Herrick home at Wainscott, L. I., before that time.

So he told his lawyer, Eli Johnson, to obtain a writ of habeas corpus to compel the parents to produce the girl in court. Before the application could be made today, Johnson announced a truce. He said:

"Miss Herrick's parents indicate that their objections have been withdrawn. A member of the family has asked for a conference."

If She's a Toe-Wiggler, Fine! It's for Efficiency

For toe wiggling increases efficiency 50 per cent, according to Dr. Thomas T. Boyd of Cambridge, a speaker before the Massachusetts Academy of Podiatry convention at Hotel Kenmore.

"Toes, cramped up in shoes, like to go places," Dr. Boyd said. "It does for the toes what a deep breath of fresh air does for the lungs. Get down to the skin when you are tired and wiggle your toes good."

Speakers at today's session include Dr. Vincent Guy of Forest Hills Hospital and Robert De Hart, former registrar of Illinois College of Chiropody and Foot Surgery.

9 Dead, 3 Dying, 7 Hurt in Auto Crashes

Seven persons are in critical condition today, nine dead and three dying, as the result of holiday week-end auto accidents which boosted November fatalities to a total of 18 in Massachusetts, double the number for the same period last year.

Near death in Groton Hospital is John L. Sabine, 24, socially prominent Harvard graduate who received a brain laceration in a collision at Groton Ridges.

Latest auto deaths recorded included those of Raymond Beaulieu, 6, of Augusta, Me.; Alfred Borowicz, 22, of New Bedford and Clayton Bennett, Jr., of Columbia Ridge, N. H., who was killed in a crash at Colebrook, N. H. His two companions were critically hurt.

Massachusetts' premier motorcyclist, David Watt, 75, of West Newton st., South End, holder of motorcycle registration No. 1 ever since registration was required, was the victim of a hit-run motorist and is in City Hospital with a fractured skull.

In Manchester, N. H., five of seven youths injured in an accident after the Manchester Central-Brockton High football game are held at Sacred Heart Hospital for treatment.

The following, all from Brockton, were in one car: Cleon Zarello, 25, of Oakland st., internal injuries, and face laceration; Dominic Reino, 23, Wyman st., fractured skull and face lacerations; Esterino Grosso, 21, Oakland st., broken left leg and cut eye; Frank Tonasso, 21, Glenwood et., internal injuries, cut eye; Samuel Primegalli, 24, Prospect st., and James Di Carli, 23, Walnut st., held for observation.

The driver of the other car, Ray Ingraham, 18, of Allston, suffered a heart attack and was also held.

Because of the condition of Ingraham and Zarello, who police said was operating the Brockton machine, they were unable to determine the cause of the crash. The Brockton group were returning home from the football game.

REPORT CAPONE, ILL, ON WAY EAST

CHICAGO, Nov. 13 (INS)—Al Capone, one-time Chicago gang overlord, already has been released from Federal prison at Terminal Island, Cal., but "is a sick and broken man," the Chicago Herald-American stated today in an exclusive story.

Capone in all probability may never return to Chicago again, the newspaper stated.

For many months he will be confined to a hospital in the East, where he will recuperate from the ravages of an illness which showed itself while he was incarcerated at grim Alcatraz Prison in San Francisco bay, the story said.

WILL MEET NO OLD PALS

"He will not return to his home on Palm Island, near Miami, Fla., previously announced, at least until he has recovered," the story, based on information obtained at Washington, D. C., declared.

"Capone will not see any of his former associates, but only members of his family. His brother, Ralph, is with him now."

Capone still is in technical custody until Wednesday, when his prison term for income tax evasion officially ends, the Herald-American said. Describing his release, he paper stated.

"With the greater secrecy ever afforded a government prisoner, he was taken from Terminal Island by boat to the mainland at San Pedro, Cal., where he was placed on a slow train for the East.

"This was on Nov. 4, one day after his representatives paid $20,000, the remainer of his fine, to Hoyt King, clerk of the Federal District Court in Chicago."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP)—The Justice Department refused today to disclose "any information" on its plans for the release of Al Capone.

It issued the following statement as a reply to reports that the former Chicago racketeer, convicted of income tax fraud, had been removed from Terminal Island Prison at San Pedro, Cal.:

"Al Capone is still in federal custody. It would not be in the public interest at this time to disclose any information regarding plans for his release. Beyond this, there is no comment nor will there be any."

Judge Who Sentenced Capone to Jail Dies

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 13 (AP)—Judge John E. Walsh of municipal court, who once sentenced Al Capone to a year in jail for carrying a pistol, died today. He was 59 and had been ill for seven years. He served the municipal court 18 years.

There, Teacher!

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 13 (AP)—Maybe the University of Southern California could use a spelling course. Miss Pantella Engle of the school of music reports these gems from a recent batch of student notebooks:

"The Bartered Bride" was recorded as "The Buttered Bride" and "The Battered Bride."

Now You Spell It!

Mendelssohn's "Scherzo" was twisted to scarecrow, scaretso and scared-so.

Brahms became Bronze; Schubert, Sherbert, and Liszt, Lisp.

LITTLETON, Col., Nov. 13 (AP)—An unemployed truck driver was shot and killed during a quarrel with his wife over money for their five children to put in the Sunday school collection plate.

Sheriff E. E. Monzingo said Mrs. Mildred Brown, 23, an expectant mother, signed a statement in which she admitted shooting her husband, Lewis, 31. He said Mrs. Brown told this story:

"My husband came home about 4 o'clock. He had been drinking. I helped him into bed and he went to sleep.

"I got up about 7 a. m. and got breakfast for the children and dressed them for Sunday school. I went in and woke Lewis. I asked him to give me some money for the children to take to Sunday school. He said he didn't have any.

"I grabbed his trousers and started going through the pockets. I found a purse with 73 cents in it. He jumped out of bed and grabbed it. As we struggled the money spilled over the floor."

Brown took the money, returned to bed and the shooting followed.

FATHER HELD AS TWO DIE

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 13 (AP)—Two children whom Constable C. O. Alexander said were beaten and slashed by their father during a period of despondency over a serious illness died in Pottsville Hospital.

His wife, Rachel, 27, beaten and slashed along with the children in the Ebert home at nearby Port Carbon, was reported in critical condition with a fractured skull.

The constable said the wife was beaten with a machinist's hammer. The throats of the children were slashed with a razor as they lay in bed.

Plunge Into Canyon Kills Film Director

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 13 (INS)—George Nicholls, Jr., 35, RKO motion picture director, plunged to death today when his parked automobile slipped off Inspiration Point at the top of Coldwater Canyon drive and rolled 500 feet to the bottom of a canyon.

His sister-in-law, Miss Acta Barnett, 25, with him in the auto, was thrown clear 300 feet from the canyon bottom and, although her skull was believed fractured, she crawled back to the top and staggered more than a mile down the road to summon help.

Snow Cruiser Here; Ties Up Hub Traffic

marred by early mishaps, but closed with a fast run across Massachusetts.

"The trip was in the nature of one long test," the doctor said.

"And on the whole, the ship behaved very well, considering that she was not designed to travel over roads at all."

He appeared worn by the long strain of driving the great vehicle, a process a good deal like nursing a two-story house on wheels along some of the most heavily traveled roads in the country.

Dr. Poulter, who stayed at the controls all the way, save for a brief period in Ohio when the Penguin wound up in a ditch, was kept busy coming through Boston.

Through streets lined with cars parked since dawn to await the ship's arrival, he eased her along, at time barely scraping through spaces that looked narrower than the Penguin's 20-foot breadth.

Only once did he miscalculate, when one of the huge 10-foot rear wheels brushed a lamp post in Wellesley Hills. The wheel hardly seemed to touch the post, but it waved like a reed in the wind and the lamp was shattered.

DODGES STREET CAR

Turning from L st. into Summer, in South Boston, the doctor had a narrow squeak between a street car and a parked automobile, but he fiddled with the four levers, each one of which controls one of the giant wheels, and the Penguin slid through with inches to spare.

The Penguin made her best time of the entire run after she crossed the Boston line. Dr. Poulter paid tribute to the alert state troopers and Boston police who cleared the way ahead.

"The Massachusetts police did the best job of any en route," he said.

SCARES HORSE

But to negotiate the traffic circle on Gallivan Boulevard, South Boston, the doctor had to back and fill four times.

As the cruiser rumbled down Washington st., South Boston, a milk wagon horse took one startled look at it, then bolted in terror into the doorway of a department store.

Everything had been carefully worked out to avoid delays on the last stage of the trek. The cruiser had one narrow escape when it almost scraped an overpass on Talbot ave., scarcely higher than its own 15-foot height, and it cleared trolley wires by only about three feet, keeping newspapermen riding on the roof ducking to escape being brushed off.

TANGLES TRAFFIC

Police successfully kept the largest crowds of the entire journey from blocking the way in front of the cruiser, but they were helpless to prevent them from falling in behind it, causing the worst traffic tieup in the State's history.

Dr. Poulter gave the weather part of the credit for the Penguin's unprecedentedly rapid run across Massachusetts.

"She's designed to run best at subzero temperatures, and the colder it gets, the better the motors perform," he explained.

The snow cruiser left Framingham at dawn, with three members of her crew slumbering peacefully in her "bedroom"—a cabin equipped with four bunks.

CREW TAKES REST

Despite the springy motion of the springless vehicle, caused by her huge low pressure tires, the crew slept on through the early hours of the morning. One of them explained later:

"We've got so we can't sleep without the rocking. It's like getting your 'sea legs' aboard a vessel."

The motion was described by one passenger as almost exactly like that of a harbor ferry boat in a choppy sea.

Passengers shifted from the lead car to the cruiser from time to time as the craft roared along. Mrs. Poulter joined her husband in the control tower as the Penguin reached Cummins rd.

She is here to see the North Star sail tonight, but will return to Chicago for the long wait until the explorers return.

Burke, Green Pay F. D. Visit

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP)—President Roosevelt received a call today from Rep. McCormack (D.) of Massachusetts, William H. Burke, Jr., new chairman of the Massachusetts Democratic committee, and Thomas Green, former state civil service commissioner. The three insisted the visit was entirely "social."

McCormack and Burke said politics were not discussed. The Congressman added that he did "horn in" to talk about a couple of minor patronage matters.

There's No Great Mystery about Cigarette Tobaccos

THERE ARE FOUR TYPES of tobaccos found in the more popular cigarettes, namely... Bright, Maryland, Burley and Turkish.

ALL THESE TOBACCOS except Turkish (which is bought direct from the planters in Turkey and Greece) and Maryland (which is bought through sealed bids under government supervision) are bought at public auction, just like any other auction where you might have bought in a table or a chair.

AT THE AUCTION SALE the tobacco is piled in baskets weighing from about 100 to 500 pounds and each purchaser buys all of his tobaccos by competitive bidding for the particular piles he wants.

THE CHESTERFIELD BUYERS buy the best of these mild ripe tobaccos for the Chesterfield blend. And it is Chesterfield's Combination... the right amounts of Burley and Bright... just enough Maryland... and just enough Turkish—that makes the big difference between Chesterfield and other cigarettes.

IT IS BECAUSE of this combination that Chesterfields are COOLER, have a BETTER TASTE and are DEFINITELY MILDER. They are made of the world's best cigarette tobaccos. You can't buy a better cigarette.

HOLLAND QUEEN ASKS U. S. JOIN IN DRIVE FOR PEACE

Netherlands upon the Netherlands West Indies, fearing Japan might move to seize the Dutch Asiatic Empire. It was pointed out that Java, Sumatra and Borneo, along with British Malaya, supply a major part of America's tin and rubber needs.)

In a staunch affirmation of Holland's "absolute neltrality," Premier Dr. Dirk Jan de Geer called upon the people of the Netherlands by radio to remain calm today and refrain from any panic which in itself might prejudice the nation's safety.

"JUSTIFIABLE PRECAUTIONS"

The military measures undertaken on the Netherlands-German frontier, De Geer declared, were not due to any increased danger but represented merely a justifiable precaution.

The premier denied, however, that Dutch mobilization was merely "formal or symbolic."

"It was in earnest," he said. "If others are convinced of this truth, our mobilization will have achieved its purpose."

"I beseech all to maintain their calm and preserve their sense of responsibility," the premier said.

"Our neutrality is a matter of great importance. So long as we continue to do our duty, we can await the future with calm."

Premier De Geer lost no opportunity to assure both sides in the conflict that the Netherlands would remain absolutely neutral, preserving strict impartiality in every respect. Military measures and partial mobilization in this country were purely precautionary, he said, "and not because Holland's neutrality has been threatened."

CITES THREAT REPORTS

Referring to rumors abroad of impending disaster to Holland, DeGeer said:

"I have come to tell you that there is not a single real reason for these reports.

"I advise you to bear in mind that when nations are at war there is an understandable disposition on each side to feel the direst apprehensions about the intentions of the other.

"When the war in Poland ended, after a brief respite, anxiety in the west obviously had to increase.

"The situation which arose, although temporary, made a greater demand upon the strength and intensity of our mobilization than previously. Measures taken by my government since then have been a result of this.

"It would be a regrettable mistake to assume that the threat to our froniers has now become greater.

"Recent measures were not taken because of actual greater danger," De Geer said, "but because certain circumstances made greater demands on our preparedness."

Britain Insists on Full Righting of Wrongs

LONDON, Nov. 13 (AP)—Authoritative British quarters asserted today that King George's reply to the Netherlands-Belgian peace move meant Britain would "insist on full reparation of wrongs done by Germany to her small neighbors."

It was also reported that British-Russian trade negotiations have reached the point of exchange of lists of commodities to be sold under an agreement reached.

A caustic speech by Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, just a few hours after the King replied, showed how slender the present chances for peace were considered.

The press again recited Britain's broadly stated aims and called attention to a more specific proviso in French President Albert Lebrun's answer to Queen Wilhelmina and King Leopold—that German should repair "the injustices which force has imposed on Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and Poland."

(Adolf Hitler, in a speech in Danzig, Sept. 19, said: "Poland never again will rise in the form of the Versailles treaty. Not only Germany, but also Russia, guarantees that.")

Their answers to the proposal of King Leopold and Queen Wilhelmina just one week ago that they help the embattled powers find a way to peace were made yesterday by King George and President Lebrun.

King George said Britain would give "most earnest consideration" to any German proposals which might "afford real prospect of achieving" Britain's avowed aim to halt German "aggression."

But Churchill declared the Allies would fight "until the other side have had enough." He, too, listed restoration of Poland and Czecho-Slovakia as an aim of the Allies.

Nazi Planes Fail In Scottish Raid

LONDON, Nov. 13—Three German war planes approached the eastern Scottish coast but were driven back by Royal Air Force craft, it was announced today.

One German plane approached the Firth of Forth, but was forced to retire by British fighters. Two other planes which approached the southeast coast of Scotland also were turned away.

Le Brun Demands 'Reparation' Peace

PARIS, Nov. 13 (INS)—French requirements for a "just and durable" peace—"reparation" towards Austria, Czechslovakia and Poland and effective guarantees of non-aggression—were placed squarely before Chancellor Hitler today.

The French peace essentials were set forth by President Lebrun in his reply to the peace bid advanced by King Leopold of the Belgians and Queen Wilhelmina of Holland.

"Only a peace based on justice would be durable," Lebrun declared. "Any solution which consecrates the triumph of injustice would procure for Europe only a precarious truce which would not embrace the legitimate and stable peace for which your majesties hope.

"It is Germany and not France upon whom it devolves today to pronounce for or against this peace to which all nations, menaced in their security and independence, aspire."

BURLINGTON, Vt., Nov. 13—The University of Vermont today received $20,000, the gift of the late Clayton J. Wright of Williston and Florida. In his will, Wright also left $5000, the income of which is to be used to educate a needy Williston boy or girl.

Youth and Car Can 'Take It'

Qumiby Taylor, a Harvard student, gave a "proving ground" demonstration that his miniature car could take it, and at the same time turned a practical joke on him into a laugh of his own.

Hunting for his diminutive automobile, Taylor found that a group of undergraduate pranksters had picked it up and carried it up a flight of concrete steps to the main door of the Harvard indoor athletic building.

Taylor, who is 6 feet 4, got into the car and promptly drove it, without damage, down the steps.

NAZI SHOTS REPLACES GAY SONGS

by H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY AT THE FRONT, SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE, Nov. 13 (INS)—The last two German soldiers we saw on a previous visit to the front were stretched out face upward and surrounded by an awe-stricken group of young French soldiers who were seeing their first dead in this war.

Today we saw two more German soldiers about 300 yards away calmly rowing a small boat on the other side of the Rhine river.

They were very much alive and completely indifferent to the fact that they were within pistol range of the French officers and soldiers with whom we stood in an advance observation post of the Maginot line.

KEEP UNWRITTEN TRUCE

Thus in this most curious of all wars the combatants fight furiously at one point, and at another they observe the unwritten and unspoken truce which allows them to go about their business with almost no attention to the fact that at any moment either side could blast the other with a sudden attack.

Almost—but not quite, for even at this sector of the Rhine front there were a few shots fired back in mid-September when the French moved forward and occupied territory in front of the Siegfried line from the Moselle river to Luxemburg.

Here we found evidence that this movement of the French seemed to have convinced Chancellor Hitler that real war on the Western front was unavoidable.

"HOLES FOR THE POLISH"

Before that time, that is to say, up to about three weeks ago, Hitler ordered his soldiers all along the Rhine to do everything possible to fraternize with the French.

By broad daylight they used to come down to the shore to play gramaphone music through loud speakers, shout across would-be friendly sentiments in their broken French and, above all, show immense placards upon which they had painted slogans such as:

"Hitler has no reason to make war on France"; "Germany does not want war with France."

There was no reaction whatever from the French until one day the Germans showed a placard reading:

"France for the French."

Thereupon the French soldiers made up an equally big placard:

"Poland for the Polish."

That was about the time the French and Germans commenced fighting in earnest in front of the Siegfried line, and since then there have been no more music, songs, shouts and placards.

War Diary

—73d Day—

In the Air, On the Land, On the Sea

Paris had its second air raid scare within two days today as sirens screamed this morning. An all-clear signal was sounded shortly after, and it was not determined the nationality of the invading planes. Another intended German air raid at the vital British naval zone at the Firth of Forth in Scotland was driven back by English planes. What activity, if any, in the sea warfare was undetermined. On the Western Front, the Paris communique declared there were some local attempts by the enemy, but were repulsed. Continued bad weather prevented the German action from developing into major attacks.

Behind the Front—An unexplained conference at The Hague last night between Queen Wilhelmina of Holland and United States Minister George A. Gordon aroused immediate speculation today as to what part—if any—the United States is taking to prevent possible involvement of Holland in the European war.

The Queen and the American minister were reported to have conferred at the royal palace for half an hour. No official information regarding their conversation was forthcoming immediately, but British circles expressed belief that peace moves were discussed.

The chain of events indicated the possibility that the peace appeal launched by Queen Wilhelmina and King Leopold of the Belgians was receiving added support—this time under the guidance of President Roosevelt.

News of the meeting between the Queen and the American diplomat was received in America, significantly, following publication of a dispatch from Washington broadly intimating the vital interest of the United States in the fate of The Netherlands.

The Washington report said that President Roosevelt was considering the advisability of some move to keep Holland out of the European war, adding that the administration was particularly concerned over The Netherlands East Indies.

Should Germany conquer The Netherlands, it said, the United States government feared Japan might take the opportunity to seize the Dutch Asiatic empire.

Bankhead Urges New Defense Tax

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (INS)—Speaker William B. Bankhead today suggested that Congress consider the advisability of levying a special tax to pay for national defense expansion.

The proposal for a national defense tax—a levy akin to the discarded processing taxes first imposed to pay for the New Deal farm program—is expected to become a major issue in the January session of Congress.

President Roosevelt, it is known, has discussed this kind of a levy with advisers over a period of months. Levies on luxuries and higher income taxes to raise $500,000,000 a year have been mentioned.

Heavy demands for increased expenditures for the Army and Navy, which some observers say may reach a total of $3,000,000,000, are expected by the speaker.

U. S. to Keep Same Forces in North China

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP)—A State Department official said today the United States did not contemplate following the example of Great Britain in withdrawing troops from North China.

NAZIS SAY 25 FRENCH CAPTURED

BERLIN, Nov. 13 (AP)—The German high command reported today that "strong enemy scouting troops" had been repulsed in fresh assaults on strategic hilltops southwest of Pirmasens and that 25 of the attackers had been captured.

A communique said:

"Renewed attempts by strong enemy scouting troops to gain a foothold on heights on both sides of Liederschiedt, 11 kilometers (6.8 miles) southwest of Pirmasens were unsuccessful. One officer and 24 men were taken prisoner."

Air Raid Sirens Alarm Calcutta

CALCUTTA, India, Nov. 13 (INS)—An air raid warning in Calcutta mystified and excited the population here. The government revealed the warning was sounded when an unidentified plane flew over a prohibited area 20 miles southeast of Calcutta.

3 Greater Boston Elections Tuesday

Three Greater Boston mayors, including economy-minded William E. Kane of Woburn, will seek endorsement of their administrations tomorrow in elections in Woburn, Chelsea and Malden.

Primary elections also will be held in Brockton, Newburyport, Northampton and Haverhill.

Topping the list in interest is the fight of Mayor Kane, who is a candidate on the Republican-Independent ticket, against Henry M. Leen, youthful chairman of the Woburn school committee.

Mayor Kane has charged that Leen blocked a $300,000 Federal grant for new schoolhouses, while the latter has charged that the mayor's campaign in the interest of economy has brought the city unfavorable publicity.

The mayor's "cage for drunks" and threat to close fire stations were targets in the Leen campaign.

In Chelsea, Mayor Edward J. Voke is opposed by Bernard L. Sullivan, state senator and former alderman. Voke, who seeks a third term, polled 6450 votes to Sullivan's 3641 in the primaries.

"BOSSY" IN COMEBACK

In Newburyport, which with Brockton will nominate mayors and complete local tickets, former Mayor Andrew J. "Bossy" Gillis is attempting to stage a comeback, running against the present incumbent, Mayor James F. Carens, Jr., Fred W. Chase and Edward B. Hoyt.

Northampton will hold caucuses today and tomorrow to nominate a mayor and other city officials, and an off-year primary for aldermen and school committeemen will be held in Haverhill.

In Malden, Mayor John D. Devir, who is completing his 12th year as mayor, is opposed in his fight for another term by Rep. William A. Hastings, a former mayor, with most interest being manifested in the contests for aldermen.

Brockton is having its first elimination primary as part of its new Plan B charter, with Mayor Fred D. Rowe (R.) opposed by former Mayors Horace C. Baker (R.) and Lawrence E. Crowley (D.) and Mrs. Florence M. Bartlett.

There is a contest in the Republican caucus at Northampton tomorrow between Mayor William H. Felker, who has served nine terms, and Atty. Kenneth Hemenway.

Hot Ashes Blamed In Temple Blaze

Hot ashes piled near a heater in a sub-cellar of the Malden Temple of Young Israel, Holyoke st., Malden, are believed to have caused a blaze which threatened a closely settled district of three-family houses.

Firemen found the two and a half-story wooden temple a mass of flames. Two alarms were sounded. Damage was estimated at $3000.

Hub Mother Warns Of War Propaganda

ADVOCATE OF PEACE

Descendant of a Colonial family whose great grandfather fought in the Revolutionary War and her father in the Civil War, Mrs. Maude M. Moulton of 48 Buswell st., Boston, today sent an open letter to the National League of Mothers of America with whom she enrolled two weeks ago.

Contending that the only way to face the present crisis is as Americans and not as pro-English, pro-French or pro-German, Mrs. Moulton wrote:

"We, in the United States, are being bombarded with the same old propaganda, the same old lies, the same old buncombe. We are being jockeyed into the same old place—to save democracy and civilization.

"Repeal of the arms embargo, in order to furnish, for profit, war material with which to murder people with whom we have no quarrel, may, and I fear will, drag us into Europe's war.

"The results will be the same as in the World War, or worse. Twenty more years of despair, crime, inertia. In return we shall no doubt hear the same old insult 'Uncle Sam got over in time for after dinner coffee.'

"If Uncle Sam, whom some of our overseas neighbors delight in calling 'Uncle Sap,' and other names, takes sides and leaves our beloved country, open to attack and depleted in man-power and munitions and fighting craft, the title might well be applied.

"The mothers of America should should refuse to bear sons for Europe's and England's wars; better an empty cradle here than a cross somewhere on foreign soil, with its maddening memories.

"Some day, please God, we may become just Americans; place only Americans in the offices of our government, and, defend AMERICA ONLY—and that in a dignified pursuit of minding our own business, like grown-up people of culture.

"If that time were here now, America would not be offered to the Demon of War, even if ever so cunningly wrapped up in cellophane."

RECRUITER of women for the Legion of Mothers is Mrs. Margaret Quinn of Blue Hill ave., Roxbury, who has a son of military age. She canvasses neighborhood for new members of the peace organization.

Mrs. Margaret Quinn of 148 Blue Hill ave., Roxbury, who has a son of military age, not only signed a pledge card herself but has been doing splendid work enrolling other mothers in her neighborhood.

A Beverly mother who has visited her war-crippled son in various hospitals for the past eight years, called upon the mothers of America "to stand firm in your demand for peace in the United States."

She is Mrs. Elizabeth E. Dupee of 192 Lothrop st., Beverly, member of Beverly Post, V. F. W. Auxiliary and the Auxiliary of Earle T. Wardwell Post, American Legion.

"I am ready to do everything humanly possible to keep the United States out of war and to prevent other American mothers from undergoing what I have suffered as a result of the World War," said Mrs. Dupee.

"I sent two sons to fight in France, and for what? My oldest boy, Frank, after two years in the combat zone, bears the brand of that nerve-wracking experience. My other boy, Roger, was more fortunate.

"For the past eight years Frank has been forced to spend most of his time in hospitals. Seeing him suffer, his arm in a cast and his attempts to be cheerful, in spite of it all, is enough to tear the heart out of any mother.

"I believe the mothers of this nation can become, with proper organization, the strongest agency for the promotion of peace.

The major slogans of the Legion of Mothers are:

1—To oppose the sending of American soldiers to fight on foreign soil.

2—To support a program for adequate national defense.

3—To combat all "isms" whose object is the destruction of the American form of government.

All women who are citizens, married or unmarried, are eligible. Sign pledge cards with name and address and mail without delay to Box 228, Boston, Mass. For further information call Liberty 4000.

Boy Accused In 25 Breaks

The 13-year-old son of a Back Bay physician, who died last May, was arraigned today in Roxbury court on breaking and entering and larceny charges, after he had admitted at least 25 breaks, according to police.

Capture of the boy, as he lay sleeping in his mother's Commonwealth ave. apartment, brought solution, police said, to a wave of petty larceny in which fashionable apartments and doctor's offices throughout the Back Bay section were looted of cash and small objects.

Police said he admitted breaking into the apartment of Congressman George Holden Tinkham, where he allegedly stole the works from several clocks.

The boy was held in $500 for Thursday's juvenile session.

Jury Hears Bund Chief's 'Love' Wires

By WALTER KIERNAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (INS)—Fritz Kuhn, steely-eyed leader of the German-American Bund, glared straight ahead today as his "love and kisses" telegrams to Mrs. Florence Camp went into the record at his trial on larceny and forgery charges.

There were three telegrams. The first, addressed to Mrs. Camp at the Riviera Beach Club, Rodondo Beach, Cal., read:

"Hope you have everything under control by tomorrow. Leaving tomorrow. Great love and kisses."

The second addressed to Mrs. Camp at the Aberdeen Hotel, Oklahoma City, reported:

"Arrived safely, lots of news. All my thoughts with you. Love you, my everything. Kisses."

The third sent to Mrs. Camp at Lakewood, Cleveland, also ended with "love and kisses."

They were signed "Fritz."

COUNSEL PROTESTS

Introduction of the telegrams followed a futile attempt by defense counsel to keep them out of the record with the argument:

"The whole purpose of bringing in this issue is to prejudice the jury."

The state got them into the record on the assertion that they were germane to one of the charges against Kuhn—that he stole $565.76 to move Mrs. Camp's furniture from Los Angeles to New York and $151.26 to move the same furniture to Cleveland.

Kuhn is married but the state claims he has a sentimental regard for Mrs. Camp, although the fuehrer himself told the last convention of the bund he had aided her only because she was a bund sympathizer.

KUHN FURIOUS

Kuhn sat quietly through the reading of the telegrams which brought snickers from the court room audience and broad grins in the jury box but it was obvious he was furious.

The telegrams were introduced through a long elaborate process which the state apparently felt necessitated the introduction of half a dozen witnesses, each of whom testified to another link in the delivery chain from sender to recipient of the wires.

The first message was dated Sept. 12, the second Oct. 22 and the third Nov. 29, all in the year 1938.

Charged to the account of the Deutscher Weckruff, Kuhn's bund week paper, they were later paid for personally by the Fuehrer, one witness testified.

Plant Oaks at Shrine Of 'Trees' Author

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Aug. 13 (AP)—The lawn of the home where Joyce Kilmer was born will finally be adorned by trees in memory of the author of the poem "Trees."

Two pin oaks were planted yesterday as Dean Fraser Metzger of Rutgers University and Mayor Richard V. Mulligan eulogized the former Rutgers graduate, killed at 32 during the Meuse-Argonne offensive in the World War.

Cash Deals Probed As Dowd Resigns

conjecture as to the identity of the new sheriff was in the air.

Asked if he would name a Democrat to the post because of the county's overwhelming Democratic majority, the Governor smiled and said:

"That is a very seductive question for so early Monday morning."

He said he would submit the name of his choice to the regular meeting of his council Wednesday.

After the Governor informed Chief Justice Fred T. Field of the Supreme Court that he had received and accepted Dowd's resignation, the three investigating bodies started work.

From the Finance Commission, Investigator Lester Murphy was sent to the jail in Charles st. to begin a checkup on all business dealings by the sheriff since Dowd was appointed acting sheriff little more than a year ago.

FURNITURE RETURNED

From the office of City Auditor Charles J. Fox, Investigators James O'Neil and James Sullivan were dispatched on a similar errand.

A survey of all merchandise, foodstuffs, furnishings and furniture, with also a close study of all alterations, renovations and construction at the sheriff's house and jail during the past 13 months was started.

As Whelton automatically became acting sheriff it was learned that furnishings valued at $800 which had been removed from the deputy sheriffs' quarters in the new courthouse some months ago had been returned.

The goods were shipped back from a Cape Cod cottage. What action the deputies will take has been undetermined. The furnishings are their personal property.

GETS RESIGNATION

Counsel for the bar association went before the Supreme Court an hour after Dowd's resignation was delivered to the governor and filed a motion asking that the information be dismissed "without prejudice."

"In view of the resignation, the preceding now becomes moot," the communication said.

The plea was taken under advisement with no objection from Atty. Francis Juggins, counsel for Dowd.

Shortly afterward Justice Fiell, with Chief Justice John P. Higgins of the superior court and Judge F. Delano Putnam of the municipal court, arrived at the governor's office and were in conference with him for a half hour. The governor said they discussed courthouse affairs and not possible successors to Dowd.

Just 16 minutes after the first attache arrived at the governor's office this morning Deputy Morris arrived with a sealed envelope addressed to the chief executive.

When told the governor had not arrived he asked for Secretary Meins. Meins also had not arrived so Morris made his delivery to John C. Wroe, executive messenger.

The governor arrived at 10:08 and made public the text of the resignation. Then he addressed the communication to Justice Field.

The resignation had been in Juggins' possession since last Friday. It was dated today and asked that the resignation take effect at 9 a.m.

Dowd, who disappeared Saturday after leaving the Bellevue Hospital, New York, where he had been taken after he was found injured on a New York street, issued a statement through his office

ATTACKS FUNDS TO FIGHT

In the statement he claimed he was the victim of persecution and had probably been "sold under the table" by those he trusted.

"No man in the history of the city has been subjected to more persecution than I have been in the past three months by political enemies who opposed me in the last contest and whom I have been good enough to keep in office.

"Nobody would enjoy fighting the charges brought by the Boston Bar Association more than I would, but unfortunately I am not in a position to finance a hearing which would last 30 or 40 days and which I have been advised would cost $12,000, or $15,000.

DEFENDS HIS HONESTY

"I leave office principally because I am unable to provide the thousands of dollars to carry on a fight against the Boston Bar Association."

In his letter of resignation, the sheriff had stated simply:

"I am herewith tendering my resignation as sheriff of Suffolk County to become effective Monday morning, Nov. 13, at 9 a. m."

Ban Magazine In Cambridge

All copies of the December issue of Popular Photography magazine were removed from Cambridge newsstands today on order of Police Chief Timothy F. Leahy.

A complaint was issued by Judge Arthur P. Stone at East Cambridge court on complaint of Chief Leahy against the New England News Company, charging them with issuing material tending to corrupt morals.

Basis for the chief's objections, he said, was a photograph in the magazine titled: "Nude."

"Maybe it's art," the chief said, "but if it is—I'm not impressed."

FIRING SQUAD AT DAWN

Above the beat of the rain in the dimmish light of the breaking day, they heard her voice raised bravely:

"Hail, O my last . . . last dawn!"

Then there was a crackling of rifle fire—the inglorious end of another spy.

"Firing Squad at Dawn," beginning below, is a series of magnificently thrilling stories describing the exploits and baring the secrets of the spies of the World War, the men and women who operated behind the enemy lines, flirting at every second with firing squads, to obtain the information upon which major operations of the military were decided.

Spies are of three classifications—the patriot, the adventurer, the gold-coveting traitor. The patriots have always been the greatest spies.

Men sacrifice their careers and their pride, women sacrifice their bodies and their highest ideals in the intrigues of espionage and counter espionage woven into these stories. A flirtation, an affair, a whispered word, a daring masquerade, a map in invisible ink on the glue of a postage stamp—and 10,000 troops are trapped for death, a great munitions dump is blasted from the map, the course of a great battle goes one way or the other.

IN the square, cheerless room of the guardhouse, the girl with the rich chestnut hair and the full, mobile lips frugally blew out the candle in the lantern she was carrying.

"Ausziehen, Sie, Fraulein, and bummen streiche nicht."

The eyes of the short, squat and altogether unlovely woman were small and piggy, but as they searched the warm brown of the girl's eyes there was nothing to be seen there except innocence and apparent hurt.

Obediently however, the girl began to undress in response to the order—and there assuredly would be no tricks, as the frog-like matron had instructed. Already the girl had played her trick—but now she wondered if it would be detected.

One by one the German intelligence service matron, skilled in the ways of feminine wiles, went through long work with the police, took the garments as they were dropped.

Minutely the clothing was scrutinized in the seams behind the buttons, wherever there was a fold.

The little felt toque, the shabby jacket, the gray skirt which fitted ill, the stockings, the shoes the slip, the neat underpantaloons . . .

Until the girl stood there wearing nought but a finger ring, a pretty girl, a sweet face, the small coal hole for ventilation in the harpsichord in the days of the first Louis—and even the slight but sturdy figure.

The thin scalp, as the frog-woman ran her fingers through the girl's skin, were cold and brought little shivers. But no writing was to be found, no messages revealed.

Dressed, could the girl proceed up the hall to the cell? She could she had explained.

"La Grenouille" (The Frog) she murmured when she had been let out of the guardhouse. She was to go down the road three kilometers to the right and to the first house on the left of the British Secret Service.

At the house to which she had been headed when the German patrol had turned her over to the fully split the candle and turned over her faith when report to the courier who would start it on its destination to the chief in France.

Again had Mlle Louise de Bettignies the girl spy of Lille, escaped the threat of a firing squad at dawn although one day she would stand before a bullet-headed German court martial, another girl beside her and they would hear the words condemning both of them to death.

FOR many months did Louise de Bettignies act as a spy for the British and thus, for the Allies as was under the name Alice Dubois and under the guise of a servant girl.

It was in [illegible] that she found up a [illegible] and it was in August 1914 [illegible] brought arrest for both of them.

Louise de Bettignies could trace her ancestry back in a long and honorable line of aristocratic family who had fallen on hard times [illegible] her birth in Lille, in Northern France, the girl became a governess as soon as she could decently quit school.

And that employment one day would save her from imminent arrest and would allow her to go on with her spy work.

As governess she had taught the children of French and German families of title, she had traveled with the families—as one of the family—to many parts of the continent and the world outside.

On occasions she had been called to sit at the card table with dukes and princes and marchionesses. She played an excellent bridge hand.

It is said of Louise that once, for a reason not explained, she declined to change her position and go with the family of the heir to Austria-Hungary a throne.

Hers was a retentive mind and her memory of her governess years was a storehouse where she sent many items of information . . .

Such as the recital by one of her employers, a German lady of title who had told Louise at Baden-Baden, laughingly, that Prince Rupprecht had had abominable luck at the bridge table that night in the house of Countess Oriola.

It was chit-chat, mere pleasantry at the time to Louise, but later it was to serve her well.

Lost the jumblings of war ended her career as governess. French employers were grim and everyone was "cutting down." German employers hungry, discharged their French servants and workers.

Louise was out of a job and on her way back to Lille when the declaration of war spread over Europe. In Belgium came terrible reports. The German March was moving through Belgium, on the way to France, crushing down the populace, looting and pillaging.

Belgians were facing Belgium and Northern France Line, Dijon, Metz-Namur, Reims, Laon. Louise found that her mother had gone to St Omer in Flanders, and the girl joined the hosts of refugees and found herself across the channel, in Folkestone England.

Through such an accident she became a British spy.

THE British officer at Folkestone was weary as the line shuffled up the head of the line was questioned and then was passed on to another officer.

Stricken faces, halting answers, tears, stupidity, fear.

The officer questioned Louise perfunctorily in French. Name age, occupation, home address, relatives, where located, [illegible] enemies? Little lines of surprise formed on his brow as she gave the quick sure answers.

"Mademoiselle," he said, pushing aside the formal paper, "can you tell us anything about the German Army of occupation?"

From out of that relentless memory she took him what she had seen on the flight and before the flight, what she had heard in Germany. She pictured for them the mood of the Germans with whom she had been associating, gave them the opinions she had formed, imparted actualities as to German train and troop movements she had witnessed in Belgium, while on the way to the Lille she never reached

Other officers had been called over long before

Louise smiled

"I know German," she said in English, and explained her work in German families.

Behind the line of refugees waiting arrival inwards. The officers took Louise aside. Here was something. Lille! For a long time that had been in the hands of the Germans. Would the madamoiselle consent to a further meeting that evening?

She met, that August night, two of the high officials of the British Secret Service and finally they told her what it was they wished she would do.

Belgium was now bloody Belgium. Her France was feeling the Prussian heel. She was from Lille. She could do her part if she would.

The color drained from her cheeks she spoke. What are they asking? She knows Germany and the Germans she knows the Prussian efficiency. Many stories has she heard first-hand of the ruthless treatment meted out to those discovered to be working against Germany, of the powerful espionage and counter-espionage systems

Gently the British officer talk with her and even as they talk the color came again to her cheeks. It saved. Why should she not? Her family before her had lived in France. She was a woman and she could not carry a gun with the men. But she could fight the common enemy this way

"I will do it," she said.

There were long conferences now, and finally Louise was sent to visit her mother at St. Omer. At first shocked, the mother wept, but Louise reassured her and, after the visit, she reported to Field Marshal French, who also was in St Omer and received her detailed instructions

Then back to Folkestone The career of Louise de Bettignies as a British spy was launched—and it was to bring her death.

WELL supplied with money, Louise found her way to Vlissingen in Holland, from where she went one night to a designated spot outside the village of Philipone on the Belgian border.

Enfolded in a long, black cloak, with a black hat pulled low over her face she waited in the darkness on the Dutch side of the frontier fence, electrocharged, and with mines set on the Belgian side to discourage prowling within the deadline.

No dream had she only a few short weeks ago that she would have the temerity to wait anywhere—least of all in a dark wood at night for a man calmly described by the British officials as a huge, ruffianly looking chap with a black beard, and by profession a smuggler.

The man who was to guide her across the border, past the highly charged wire fence that meant death even if approached too closely, through fierce mines with the brush-hidden loops of wire that were triggers that man was called Alphonse Verspeyen, a Belg an and the British were not very reassuring regarding him

"I think we can trust his patriotism," one British official had told the petite and attractive Louise, "but I don't know how far we can trust him alone with a pretty woman."

Almost [illegible] stepped in [illegible] the [illegible] smell the [illegible] stale tobacco [illegible] ing. He [illegible] apparently [illegible] a searchlight flashed through the [illegible] on the Belgian side, [illegible] he opens a hole that [illegible] been here in preparation, [illegible] arms her briefly that [illegible] sees that beam after [illegible] across the way she [illegible] quickly to the ground [illegible] her face.

Then [illegible] opens the underbrush and they crawl [illegible] on their hands and [illegible], after they stand [illegible] death fence behind [illegible] must fall quick to [illegible] searching ray, beside [illegible] stand to shoot [illegible] hers—even ayes such [illegible] fore Alphonse Verspeyen [illegible] pped up beside her [illegible] k growth, she can [illegible] andy breath and the [illegible]

But he says nothing [illegible] yes her hand and [illegible] No Belgian is a man more than words. [illegible]

But when at last they reach Lille, and Louise's home in Rue [illegible]ily, they have passed through many succeeding dangers just as successfully, their forged passports and permissions to travel being accepted without question—a tribute to the passport factory of the Special Intelligence in London.

The huge, black bearded Belgian was given food, but declined to stay and rest. As he was leaving, his little eyes roved over Louise's trim figure

"You were not even once afraid on the whole trip?" he asked in apparent amusement.

SHE laughed "More than once," she said. "Those Boches. THEY ARE TERRIBLE."

His expression changed, almost to sullenness

"I did not mean the Boches," he said.

On the next day, assuming her new identity as Alice Dubois, dressed to fit the new character as a maker and seller of laces, and with passport and permission to travel in that name contained in the big imitation leather bag she carried, the new spy set to work to form her organization.

From a little shop in Lille she recruited a friend, Marie-Leonie Vanhoutte, who became "Charlotte" an itinerant seller of choice cheeses.

In the town of Mouscron she found as allies Louis Soon and his son, Etienne, manufacturers, and M. de Goyter, a chemist, who later was to write for her information from her cohorts, including it with her own report, and then sending the whole by a series of changing couriers

ALTHOUGH later Alice was to enjoy the experience of outwitting the Boche through use of the transparent paper, invisible ink and a lens of her eyeglasses, concealing of the precious, and at the same time, incriminating report she was a loath to make task in the earliest months of the war

In food, in shoelaces, in lunch baskets, false linings of boxes, skirt hems, in corsets, umbrella handles, in the [illegible] shoe heels, undergarments and even in mode physical, the info[illegible] sense of it invaluable, was [illegible] puted

On one occasion when Alice had a new identity card to be stamped with the Imperial eagle of Germany she flirted as the stamp was impressed and the card was handed back to her. In the damage done the Boche in one of the major battles. The word came to Louise—now Alice Dubois—as she shall be called and Alice knew that the trains with wounded would pass through Lille

From a house that gave vision on the railroad, eyes peered out that night and as each shadowy car of a train passed a tap sounded on the wall to be heard in the next room. There sat a schoolgirl, absorbed in her lessons behind the heavily curtained window, and if at each tap the schoolgirl made a little pencil mark on her paper who was there to wonder later what those marks may have been"

Knowing the number of cars, the Allies had but to multiply this by the number of wounded generally carried per car and they had the casualty figures which could tell them whether or not her enemy had been weakened sufficiently for a new attack immediately.

If the schoolgirl passing down the street, ceased to murmur a number and this number should be overheard by someone also walking in the street, it might just be possible that Alice Dubois might soon hear the number and include it in her report.

Sometimes in her guise as an itinerant lace vender, she would be able to slip away herself from some remote town and journey surreptitiously to Folkestone and deliver her reports to Major Edward Cameron, her superior. These jaunts were dangerous, however, and usually she contented herself with sending her information from her cohorts, including it with her own report and then sending the whole by a series of changing couriers

ALTHOUGH later Alice was to enjoy the experience of outwitting the Boche through use of the transparent paper, invisible ink and a lens of her eyeglasses, concealing of the precious, and at the same time, incriminating report she was a loath to make task in the earliest months of the war amazingly skilled and deceptive fashion, a film of translucent paper had been pasted over the text, and the image was impressed on this paper.

And in invisible ink the film carried her latest report.

There came a day when the grapevine brought her word that the British badly needed all details regarding the strength and location of the Hohenzollern Prince Rupprecht's batteries, in front of Arras

The information was obtained and so confident had she become in the use of her forged permits, some to travel, skilful duplications of the originals and executed by M de Goyter she planned that her report was in her handbag

Whenever she opened the bag to show the travel permit, the other officer, including the report also showed and his very casualness she was not suspected of anything except what she appeared to be.

But she came to one sector where a sentinel stopped her, examined the permit and then thrust it back.

"The Fraulein should know, he said sternly, "that a special permission is needed to travel through this zone."

She was on the point of asking [illegible] but thought better of that slip and, instead dropped a purse which clinked metallically at the ground. The sentry, bribe proof, looked at her coldly and she was trembling by the time he went, and perhaps fatal move, when she saw a high officer emerge from a mansion.

The sentry heard her gasp. He turned his head, following the direction in which she was looking.

"It's Prince Rupprecht," she exclaimed quickly seeing with her quick wit one possible chance out of her predicament

Hastily she tossed the toad and came up to the prince

IT HAS BEEN significantly "intimated" at the temporary White House in Hyde Park, N. Y., that Earl Browder and his Communist party may be liable to Federal prosecution on conspiracy charges because of Browder's recent Boston speech calling for a "quick transition" in America from Democracy to "Socialism."

"Circles close to the President" were quoted as "believing" that the phrase "quick transition" is nothing but a "parlor term" for "revolution"—and that the criminal courts might easily so hold.

There is indeed overwhelming evidence to sustain this "opinion."

For one thing, it is apparent that a "quick transition" to Browder's brand of "Socialism"—which is Russian Communism—could be brought about in this country BY ONLY ONE MEANS—by means of FORCE and VIOLENCE.

Declaring that the war in Europe "is PLACING THE SOCIALIST REVOLUTION ON THE ORDER OF THE DAY" as a "PRACTICAL QUESTION" Browder said:

"The Communist Party of the U. S. A. appears small and weak in comparison to the gigantic tasks which history has placed upon us of leading 130 million Americans to a new Socialist system.

"But we must never forget that 25 years ago THE RUSSIAN BOLSHEVIKS appeared even weaker, a persecuted and outlawed group, but today that party heads a nation of 180 millions."

Every dues-paying Communist and every Communist "Fellow Traveler" knows EXACTLY what Browder meant by that.

The "Bolshevik Party" in Russia seized the state power, and established its tyranny, by AN ARMED UPRISING against the legal and liberal parliamentary provisional government which had been formed by the Duma after the Romanoffs' downfall.

Seemingly, therefore, Earl Browder was obliquely inciting his American "comrades" to be ready to do IN THIS COUNTRY what the followers of Lenin and Trotsky did IN RUSSIA in 1917.

IF THERE WERE DOUBT that Browder OBEYS THE VOICE OF MOSCOW in fomenting REVOLUTION in America, that doubt would be resolved by current Communist documents, emanating from Moscow, which have been published in America in the Daily Worker, official Communist organ.

On November 1, the Daily Worker printed in full the speech of Vyacheslav Molotov, "chairman of the Council of People Commissars and People's Commissar for Foreign Affairs of the U. S. S. R."

Molotov denounced the United States as virtually a participant in the "imperialist" war because of its then pending action on the Arms Embargo.

Three days later, on November 4, the Daily Worker published a long statement by George Dimitrov, general secretary of the Communist International, ECHOING MOLOTOV, and exhorting the Communist parties of the world to "organize and take command" of the "struggle" against the "imperialist" war.

On November 5—only a few hours before Browder spoke—the Daily Worker published a manifesto of the executive committee of the Communist International extolling Soviet Russia as "The Fatherland of the Working People of All Lands."

Addressed to "the proletarians of all countries," this manifesto said:

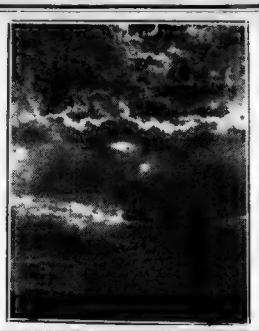
"The Communist International calls you to its ranks under the great banner of Marx, Engels, Lenin and Stalin."

THESE MOSCOW documents — TO WHICH EARL BROWDER REFERRED IN HIS SPEECH—make the fact transparently evident that, behind all its recent camouflage of "United Fronts" with "Liberals" and fake campaigns for "peace" and "democracy," Communism has never changed its sinister and hateful nature.

Its sole aim now—exactly as Marx and Engels proclaimed in 1848—is the "VIOLENT OVERTHROW" of "EXISTING SOCIAL INSTITUTIONS."

And Browder's servile speech makes equally evident the fact that the Communist Party of the United States is still—as it has always been—MOSCOW'S SUBMISSIVE TOOL AND PLOTTING MINION.

The Cavalcade



WE could not hear the trumpets loud alarm . . . nor see, emblazoned on each flashing shield . . . the cross or eagle on the azure field . . . nor yet the falcon borne on knightly arm . . . But, with the parting of the clouds, there came . . . a sudden gleam, a momentary flame . . . and leaping fire of sunlight's radiant glance . . . on halbert, cuirass, casque, and leveled lance . . . And as the glorious cavalcade swept by . . . the sun sank slowly in the Western sky.

Human Side of News -:- By EDWIN C. HILL

A MONSTROUS, malignant shadow darkens the Baltic coast, extinguishing the light of liberty in three republics, and threatening stout-hearted little Finland.

It is the shadow of the great arch-enemy of Christianity — all religion, the arch-enemy of human liberty—the shadow of Stalin.

Germany, throwing open the gates of Eastern Europe to the Russian Bear, has let down the barriers to a creature which some day, in its own good time, may sink its teeth in her throat. When German youths are being slaughtered on the Western Front and Germany stands watchfully off on the sidelines, it will be Stalin who will say "How now, Hitler?"

DICTATOR STALIN
"He Is Like a Tiger"

ALREADY Stalin has blocked Germany from the Eastern Baltic. Russia controls the Baltic today, not Germany. Already Russia has swung around to the southeast, blocking off Germany from the Balkans. In effect, if not in so many words, Stalin says: "Thus far and no farther, my dear German friend."

Russia has already checked, if not altogether wrecked, the Hitler dream of golden grainlands in the Ukraine.

What manner of man is this sinister dictator who bestrides all Eastern Europe like a colossus, and patiently—with such Oriental patience — bides his time?

His appearance is not particularly striking. He is only five feet, five inches tall. His thick hair is graying slightly. His mustache, like his eyebrows, is dark and bushy. He has flashing eyes. His face is oval and pock-marked, the nose aquiline. He is of medium weight.

He does not care for ostentation or show. He wears, in winter, a dark olive-green, military type jacket buttoned at the neck, khaki riding-breeches and top boots.

He smokes a pipe incessantly and it is said his favorite tobacco is an American brand. He hesitates, however, to smoke this non-Soviet product in public. Between courses at dinner he puffs on his pipe, which always lies beside his plate. He reads constantly.

IN THE KREMLIN, this son of a peasant cobbler lives in the vast apartments once occupied by Ivan the Terrible. For this man Stalin, it was a long, hard, stony road to the mastership of Russia, with hardships and banishment and prison. It has been said of Stalin, by former associates, that his great weapons are self-mastery and irony.

Slowly, deliberately, Stalin gets beneath the skin of an opponent. He is like a tiger relentlessly stalking its prey.

His perseverance, as Walter Duranty has said, is "inhuman." He is a slow builder. He takes only the "long view." Stalin has an Oriental's shrewdness, cunning and craft. It is also said of Stalin that he is "inaccessible to joy, ecstasy or any sort of sentiment that might make him soften and yield to a human impulse."

When one thinks of the Communazi alliance — of Hitler and Stalin—one recalls the Chinese proverb: "He who rides with the tiger dare not fall off."

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- MY DAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 — The Florida State Music Teachers Association has a new and novel idea. Like all citizens of Florida, they feel that no one should be deprived of spending some part of the year in that state. They have started out, therefore, to get 20,000 professional musicians to become members of a club.

The idea is that this "Musicians' Club of America" will be maintained for the benefit of professional musicians.

Any surplus beyond expenses remaining in the club treasury will be used to support club members who have reached the age of 70 and who have no other means of support. It will also go toward providing a congenial home for retired musicians who may not be in need and who wish to pay something for their support, but cannot afford, perhaps, to be in such a pleasant climate or in as comfortable surroundings as this club membership will give them.

Miss Bertha Foster, who started this whole idea, is head of the conservatory of music at the University of Miami, at Coral Gables, Florida. Apparently her plan is going to succeed.

I KNOW of a number of other places which have been established to give artists an opportunity to live comfortably with as little anxiety and cost to themselves as possible.

FIRST LADY VIEWS CONTEMPORARY ART
Can WPA Replace Wealthy Patrons of Yesterday?

New Hampshire, is one such place, and "Yaddo" established by the late Mrs. George Foster Peabody on her estate at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., is another.

I have been receiving of late a number of appeals begging that I assist artists who are no longer young. Others beg that I try to obtain a hearing of some kind for some young artist who has not yet had a chance to become known to the public.

Of course, when the arts flourished in the old days, it was sufficient for an artist to have a rich patron and then to develop under the protection of his important sponsor.

Today, for the most part, this method of developing and protecting art has passed out of existence and I am wondering if the WPA art projects may not take their places.

Instead of one noble, it is now the people of the United States who give protection to artists and develop their own culture through their familiarity with the arts, which up to the past few years were a more or less closed book to them.

I think it is safe to say that we have developed taste, discrimination and curiosity about the great painters and great artists generally in the world through these programs.

MERRILL MAY AID PLANE DEAL

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Nov. 13—Major de Seversky is set to embark upon his newest enterprise—that of manufacturing planes and getting them to their purchasers abroad . . . Seversky proposes to have his planes flown to their destination. For that purpose he and Dick Merrill will train, in America, fliers for the trips to Europe.

PET DEPT.—Thyra Samter Winslow and a young man went to Coq Rouge and each ordered a drink. When their check came Thyra noticed that it was for $3 . . . "That's the minimum," she was told. "You're entitled to another 75 cent drink each" . . . "We don't want another drink," Thyra stated. "But I'll be darned if I waste it" . . . And, so, instead, she ordered raw meat to be taken out—for her Pomeranian.

MRS. WILLIAMS

LOCAL NEWS—American industrialists are considering the purchase of the British-owned railroad in the Argentine . . . The New York Central will place a miniature train exhibit in the New York City Information Center . . . The movie "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" will have its premier at the Keith Theater in Washington on Jan. 18 and then will be road-shown . . . The report was revived last night that Joseph Paterno, Jr., has purchased an ammunitions factory outside of Philadelphia and already has orders from the Italian and Turkish governments.

FASHIONS DEPT.—Mrs. Harrison Williams, who once shunned publicity, now is seeking it not for herself but for the French designers . . . The French government, after ordering the dress establishments to shut down, now has decided that the fashion industry could help cement Franco-American relations . . . The fashion designers therefore are being demobilized to make midseason collections . . . The only top-flight designers who abided by the first shutdown order were Balenciaga, a Spaniard; Mainbocher, an American, and Chanel, a Frenchwoman.

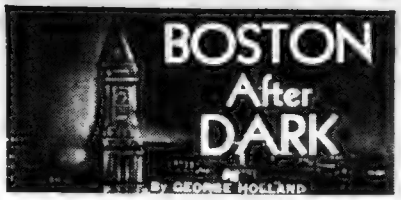
ART DEPT.—Jules Bache was tendered a birthday party by the Marshall Heminways. Mr. Bache will submit to an eye operation next Friday, and so a number of pretty girls were present, for the art connoisseur insisted that this was the last pretty eight he wanted to see before the doctors blindfold him . . . The young ladies ganged up on Bache and kissed him—leaving their lipstick imprints on his pate and both cheeks . . . "This," said the man who has given away more than a million dollars' worth of paintings, "is real, pure art."



MONDAY MORNING MUSINGS: State Street gossip has it that the short-lived "war babies boom" made a few new Boston millionaires . . . One of them would surrender his winnings gladly if a "peace boom" got under way . . . His son is a French infantryman . . . And who else is getting a little tired of Winston Churchill? . . . It is a fact that a movement is developing in his own country for the removal from high office of both Mr. Churchill and the unfortunate Chamberlain . . . (With an ear to the waterfront these days, you can learn a lot) . . . In the Sunday news dispatches there was evidence that all the bluster boys in the European mess, with a firm push, could be shoved into a seat at a peace council.

Along comes Churchill with an ill-timed harangue, featured by old-fashioned name-calling . . . Granting that his terms for Hitler are accurate, if you wish, what does it win England or Hitler's victims? . . . "A cornered maniac" having the name might figure he might as well have the game . . . Meantime, the Germans have been knocking off English capital ships, Mr. Churchill's wards in the war . . . The parade has gone by Winsome Winston . . . If he'd stop turning on the charm and practicing fancy phrases on his typewriter, it would be a help towards getting three or four million miserable mooches out of the pill-boxes by Christmas . . . In this opinion.

GOVERNOR SALTONSTALL IS NOT GOING to make the mistake urged upon him by the limper of his advising brains in naming a Republican to the post of Suffolk County Sheriff . . . The column hears that a popular Democrat, and a moderately young one at that, will be appointed as Sheriff of a preponderantly Democratic county . . . He may be named tomorrow.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Joe Vosmik won't be benched. He'll start for the Red Sox in left field, with Dominic DiMaggio ready to patrol the scoreboard territory if Jolting Joe gets off poorly . . . Bobby Hackett, the Boston trumpeter, is playing better than ever as a member of Horace Heidt's orchestra. Musicians predicted that the "sweet" mood of the Heidt outfit would confound the swingy Robert . . . It didn't . . . A throwback to some strange species of theatrical producer which probably thrived in Elizabethan England, Michael "Hot Mike-all-dough" Todd has donated a "piece" of the Bill Robinson extravaganza to William Doll, the show's press-agent.

"HOT MIKADO" SENT Producer Todd flying west as gleeful as a Boy Scout with his good deed for the day accomplished . . . The show is playing the Opera House on a graduated contract, which increases the producer's share if the gross hits a certain figure . . . In its first week, "Hot Mikado" grossed nearly $200 more than $25,000 . . . When the figures reached $25,000, it meant a gain of $1250 to Mike, and a loss of that amount to the Shuberts . . . Oh boy, oh boy, oh boy!...

WARSAW FILM LEAD FOR JOEL McCREA

By Louella O. Parsons

Joel McCrea

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 13—Arthur Hornblow, Jr., is the first producer to touch the recent Warsaw tragedy for a movie background. He's just bought "Polonaise" by Brian Marlowe and Thomas Monroe. It's about a brawny Polish football player at Notre Dame, who at the outbreak of the invasion goes back to Poland to rescue his aged grandmother. When I tell you that Joel McCrea and Maria Ouspenskaya are set for the roles of the football hero and the grandmother, you'll agree it is a perfect bit of casting.

AFTER GENE AUTRY finishes "Shooting High" with Jane Withers at 20th Century-Fox, his value will go sky high. Gene is a sensation now in the small theaters where Republic pictures are shown, but up to the time he went to T. C. F. he never had a chance at the big time houses. Once he gets there there'll be no stopping him and this won't be his only junket into important theaters. Sol Wurtzel has signed him on a second picture, "End of the Trail" which will also have Tom Mix and all the Western stars and horses they can corral. As I said before—this will do for the good old Westerns what "Hollywood Cavalcade" did for custard pie memories.

WERA ENGELS

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Mary Pickford, responsible for getting Wera Engels, Ivan Lebedeff's heart, out of Austria, at the "Daytime Wife" preview with him. Mary, looking unbelievably young and pretty, is back at Pickfair for the first time in several months; Norma Shearer and George Raft attracting more than ordinary attention as they walked into the theater.

BETTE DAVIS traveling with her aunt and uncle across the country in her station wagon, due in today; Jane Bryan leaves for New York Tuesday to make a personal appearance with "We Are Not Alone"; Arthur Lyons gave his wife, Ila Rhodes, $25,000 worth of jewelry just a few days before they parted; Alice Marble makes those first tests at M-G-M today; it's an old English custom so Herbert Wilcox is tossing a tea at four o'clock today, the first day's shooting on "Irene."

MELVYN DOUGLAS, up and around for the first time since his illness, saying "hello" on the M-G-M lot; Cesar Romero took Joan Crawford to the opera Saturday night and Joan knocked them cold with some gorgeous new ruby jewelry; Anna Sten, usually so dignified, startling the La Conga addicts by doing a hot rhumba.

DAILY STORY — Love's Triumph

GRETCHEN had been our maid for only two weeks when I began to see that my oldest son, Lee, was showing a growing interest in her. I was at once disturbed, for Lee was my pride and joy, tall, good-looking and talented.

His college professors had said he would go places, and for a long time I had secretly cherished the hope that he would marry Annice Lake, a wealthy young society girl who would be a social asset to him.

I spoke to Lee about Gretchen, but he was cold and indifferent, refusing to discuss her with me.

ONE EVENING when my husband and I were returning late from a party, we decided to go out into the kitchen for a snack before retiring. As we approached the dimly-lighted room, we heard Lee's voice, husky, emotional, "Gretchen darling, I'm crazy about you. Marry me soon, darling . . . darling . . ."

My husband and I crept back into the living room. Trembling with shock I gazed haggardly ahead of me. "Don," I muttered, "this can't go on. Something has to be done. His career."

Don shook his head. "Lee's a stubborn boy and a sincere one, Lila. If he's really in love with this girl, there's nothing we can do about it."

But I was a social climber, determined that my son should not marry a girl of small means and humble background.

The next night an old business friend of Don's was coming on from New York for the week-end so I resolved to keep Gretchen on until the following Monday. Don's friend was an extremely wealthy man, used to the best, and Gretchen was a cook not so easily replaced.

At seven o'clock we were all sitting around the table with our guest, Lawrence Easterlin, when Gretchen entered the room with the entrees. I could not miss the look between her and my son, secretly adoring, radiant.

THEN a strange thing happened. Gretchen dropped the tray she was carrying and flew into Lawrence Easterlin's arms. "Dad," she said over and over again.

The story she then told us wasn't a very long one. She had become bored with the attentions of money-hungry suitors, her dull life. So she had taken a course in domestic science and, unknown to her father, found a job—and, as it has now proved—a husband.

Can you write a short story? Send it to Daily Story Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Square. Five dollars will be paid for week's best contribution. If you wish stories returned, enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

LISTEN, WORLD! — By Elsie Robinson

HOW WOULD YOU like to occupy this space? Ever since we first gave the readers of this column the opportunity to be a COLUMNIST FOR A DAY thousands of letters have come in asking for a repeat.

Here's that chance you have been waiting for . . . the chance to make your views and ideas known all over America. What's your idea on marriage, ambition, career?

What's wrong and what's right with the younger generation, the older generation—with anything? Sit down and write right now to Elsie Robinson, 235 East 45th st., New York City.

DO YOU REMEMBER these lines from Kipling's "IF"?

If you can keep your head when all about you are losing their's, and blaming it on you—"

If you have ever tried to do something which you knew to be right, but which was also difficult and unpopular . . . you will appreciate these lines . . . you will know how much courage it takes to live them.

It is not the danger or hardship of the acts itself that keeps most of us from embarking on new and noble adventures . . . IT'S THE FEAR OF BEING MISUNDERSTOOD . . . LAUGHED AT . . . CRITICIZED . . . SNUBBED.

Human beings are gregarious animals. We like to live with the herd, think with the herd, be in right with the herd.

And nothing will arouse the vicious criticism of the herd as surely as DOING SOMETHING DIFFERENT. The thing you are about to do may be a brave and honorable act . . . may be the only thing you CAN DO to keep your self-respect . . . but these arguments don't count with the herd.

YOU CAN'T EXPECT TO HAVE YOUR CAKE AND EAT IT TOO. If you can't stand criticism, if you can't exist without the approval of your contemporaries, then DON'T START ANYTHING. For you're surely going to suffer plenty of punishment if you do.

But, on the other hand, if you have the stamina to stand the gaff of being a maverick, IT'S WORTH IT.

You may be lonely, but you will be FREE. You may miss the comforts of companionship and the plaudits of popularity . . . BUT YOU WILL FEEL A PRIDE AND FIRE AND FURY OF ADVENTURE WHICH THE CORRALED CAN NEVER KNOW.

Zorita Stars In Howard Revue

Zorita is the most bountifully talented of the "Bali Maidens," this week's burlesque revue at the Old Howard. Her serpentine dancing, particularly in her novelty number, "The Wedding of the Cobra and the Maid," is the show's highlight.

Zorita

Noe is comedy slighted in the current stage show, Art Gardner and Tiny Fuller, assisted by "Hello Jake" Fields, Hebrew comic, are highly rated for their laugh-provoking ability. In the glamour division are Diane Johnson and Mary Woods.

Johnny Cook is the master of ceremonies; Kay Austin, an acrobatic dancer who has a novel act, and others in the cast of 60 are Bobby Burns, Pat Burns, Romona Schanet, the Three Neff Brothers, the Tip Top Girls, the Edward Sisters and Mary and Belle Taylor.

On the screen are "The Story of Irene and Vernon Castle," with Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, and "Lawless Valley," with George O'Brien.

Harpo Marx to Speak In Woollcott Play

For the first time in his career, Harpo Marx will speak lines in a play. He will play Banjo, patterned on himself in real life, in the Kaufman-Hart comedy, "The Man Who Came To Dinner," when the number two company goes on the road. This is the company in which Alexander Woollcott, who inspired the Broadway laugh hit, is expected to play himself, Sheridan Whiteside.

Five Beauty Queens at Globe

Five beauty queens are sharing the Globe spotlight this week. They are Joy St. Clair, Adra Cleopatra Cooper, Kay Johnson, Frances McAvoy and Kayla Foster.

Joy St. Clair

The sinuous Miss St. Clair's dancing is swung enough to delight the jitterbugs. Seven snakes contribute to the exotic appeal of Miss Cooper's unusual Egyptian dance, "Dawn of Vishnu."

Miss Johnson, "blonde bombshell," and Miss McAvoy also offer different dance-steps. Miss Foster's program includes some of her popular radio offerings.

The Globe's indispensable comic, Mandy Kay, again heads the comedy department, assisted by Harry Ryan, Al Pharr, Les Golden and Irving Bensen.

"The Whole Town's Talking," with Edward G. Robinson, and "The Frameup," starring Paul Kelly, are the screen features.

'Wizard of Oz' at Normandie

"Boston After Dark," by George Holland, appears every day in the Boston American.

PREMIERES TONIGHT ON COLONIAL AND SHUBERT STAGES

Three Shows Continue Runs

OPENING TONIGHT

COLONIAL—"Key Largo," the long-awaited Maxwell Anderson play starring Paul Muni, is the story of a young American who returns to this country as a deserter from the Loyalist forces at the close of the Spanish war, wanders to Key Largo, a small island off the coast of Florida, and there becomes involved in a struggle to overthrow the venal menace of Murillo, a gambler. Uta Hagen has the leading feminine role. Others are Harold Johnsrud, Jose Ferrer, Frederic Tozere, Ralph Theodore, Charles Ellis, James Gregory, Alfred Etcheverry, Norma Millary, Carl Malden and Richard Cowderry. Staged by Guthrie McClintic for the Playwrights' Company. Settings by Jo Mielziner. Two weeks' engagement.

SHUBERT—"DuBarry Was A Lady," B. G. DeSylva's new musical production with a Cole Porter score, co-stars Bert Lahr and Ethel Merman. Supporting players include Phil Regan, Betty Grable, Mabel Todd, Kay Sutton, Hugh Cameron, Benny Baker, Geraldine Spreckels, Ann Graham and Tony Romano.

The orchestra is under the direction of Gene Salzer. The book, by Herbert Fields and B. G. DeSylva, has been directed by Edgar MacGregor. Robert Alton has staged the dances and Raoul Pene Du Bois has designed the costumes and scenery. Two weeks' engagement.

CONTINUING

PLYMOUTH—"Morning's At Seven," new American comedy by Paul Osborn, author of "On Borrowed Time" and "The Vinegar Tree," continues for a second and final week before its New York premiere. Its nine equally important characters are Enid Markey, John Alexander, Effie Shannon, Jean Adair, Kate McComb, Lillian Foster, Thomas Chalmers, Russell Collins and Herbert Yost.

Joshua Logan, one of the three organizers of Falmouth's University Players, directed this Dwight Deere Wiman production. Jo Mielziner did the amazingly authentic set, two adjoining backyards in mid-west town, used throughout the three acts. Lucinda Ballard did the clothes.

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE—"Hot Mikado," Michael Todd's sizzling, modernized version of the Gilbert and Sullivan classic starring Bill Robinson, acknowledged King of Harlem, as Emperor of the mythical kingdom of Titipu. Designer Nat Karson is responsible for the veritable sun-burst of color in costumes.

OPEN WEEK FROM TONIGHT

PLYMOUTH—"Tobacco Road," Jack Kirkland's study of poor whites down South will eclipse the "Abie's Irish Rose" run record next Saturday when it reaches its 2533d performance, will have Charles "Slim" Timblin in the Jeeter Lester role first played here by Henry Hull.

OPENING NOVEMBER 27

COLONIAL—"Madame, Will You Walk," Sidney Howard comedy starring George Cohan, will have a pre-Broadway engagement of only one week. Matinee performances will be presented on Thanksgiving (Thursday), instead of the usual Wednesday, and on Saturday. Names in supporting cast include Peggy Conklin, Sara Allgood, Arthur Kennedy and Keenan Wynn (Ed Wynn's son).

SHUBERT—"Three After Three," musical show with books and lyrics by Guy Bolton and Johnny Mercer and music by Hoagy Carmichael, co-stars Simone Simon, Mitzi Green and Mary Brian.

It is the story of three sisters swamped in boredom on a chicken farm in New Hampshire, who inherit a small legacy which they decide to invest in a hunt for rich husbands. Earl Oxford, Art Jarrett and Roger Converse are the objects of their hunt.

"LOVE, MARRIAGE—give them up—they're not for men of science," Dr. Akim Tamiroff counsels young Dr. John Howard in Paramount's "Disputed Passage," opening Thursday on the Metropolitan screen. Dorothy Lamour is the object of Howard's affections.

WOMAN SPY TRICKED ENEMY WITH DARING

would make a person circumspect, but the birds were carefully hidden, and for many days thereafter Alice's reports were flown out of her zone back to the home left at St. Omer.

Edith Cavell, the English nurse who had been active in aiding wounded and fugitive Belgians and French to escape into Holland, had been arrested and executed. Perhaps in hope of dampening the espionage in Alice's zone, the Germans announced publicly, from time to time, the arrest or execution of various spies—until they had made more than 200 such announcements.

Still the leak persisted and still the Boche were unable to plug it. Although they had their suspicions, they could prove nothing. And Alice knew by now that she was under suspicion. The very frequency of her detentions and her increasing sessions with the pig-like matron could not help but apprise the girl spy of this.

Yet she carried on, with no man or woman of her organization giving any public sign that he or she knew the leader, and with Alice giving no sign that she knew any of them.

THERE came a night when secret police suddenly descended upon an inn at Ghent which Alice used as a contact point, but this keen-minded girl had prepared for such an emergency beforehand.

Out of bed she slipped, through a window, up to the roof of a shed—and then dropped down and vanished. But there was her empty bed, rumpled and showing unmistakeable signs of recent occupancy.

Two children of the landlady slept, however, in the room next to that of Alice. With the alarm, one of the children slid out of its nest, scurried into the empty room and hopped into the bed of the girl spy while it was still warm.

The secret police were considerably puzzled and very much disturbed when their search failed to reveal the spy suspect they sought.

Yet all this could not go on forever without some trap succeeding. Alice was in Holland on a day when Charlotte, the pseudo cheese-vendor, received a postcard from her girl-chief, an apparently innocuous card meant to inform Charlotte that all was well with the absent one and she had reached her destination.

In the same mail to Charlotte, however, came a letter which bore the strange message, in just as strange a hand:

"Come as soon as you get this to the Lion Belge. It concerns Alice."

Charlotte knew that here was something dangerous, because all in the organization knew Alice had gone to Holland. More important and alarming than that, though, was the fact that Alice and Charlotte were supposed not to be acquainted with each other.

She feared to respond to the letter's message, and yet she feared to disregard it. Greatly disturbed she went to the Lion Belge and waited. It was not long before a man came to her side.

"Walk up the road with me," he said. "I carry news to you from Alice."

Charlotte hoped she was carrying off her pretense well.

"Alice?" she said. "I do not know an Alice."

His smile was not reassuring. He informed her, calmly, that he certainly knew she was a friend of Alice and that she had best listen. Now there was no further need for politeness and Charlotte excused herself with seemingly offended dignity and went home. That night she was arrested, and one of the men who entered her house with revolvers drawn was the man at the inn that afternoon.

While Charlotte was still pacing a cell in the prison of Saint Gilles at Roubaix, Alice returned to Lille and heard the dire news. She realized then that her own time was growing short, but before she could flee she must carry out her last mission. Collecting the new reports, she had them written in the fine-pointed calligraphic penmanship, with invisible ink. Then she wound the Japanese rice paper into a tight ring and packed it under her own finger ring.

From the shadows of the depot the two men watched the dark, silent trains thunder through in the most perfectly staged spy drama of the early war. Tomorrow—Carl Hans Lody, first German convicted as a spy in England after the World War's start.

MEANWHILE, to one of the organization, a girl called "Marguerite," had given word to meet Alice on the road between Tournai and Mouscron. After Marguerite, who was instructed to obtain a travel permission, had been given the report then Alice would arrange to reorganize the group and she herself would leave. Her work would be of no further value and in any event she could not save Charlotte.

But Marguerite had failed to obtain a new permission to travel. As a result they were both arrested when a guard stopped them and asked for papers. There came a moment of drama and anguish when, as the closed car passed along the street in Mouscron, Alice spied the chemist, M. de Geyter, and his wife.

"Stop the motor," Alice cried. "They know us. They will tell you we are all right."

But the De Geyters, mindful of Alice's earlier injunction that, come what may, no member of the organization should profess to know another, denied acquaintanceship when Alice asked them if she was not their "dressmaker."

Taking no chances, the guards then picked up the de Geyters also, but they were subsequently released. A short time afterward the witness Marguerite was released too.

But into the prison of Saint Gilles went Alice, and again there was the frog-woman to expect. First, however, Alice was led to the office of the commandant.

"I am leaving you alone for a few minutes," said the official who took her there. "I advise you not to try to escape."

Alice knew well what that was for. Somewhere in those enclosing walls were peepholes and through those peepholes they hoped to see the incriminating move that would reveal where she carried any secret message—if indeed she had one.

Pacing the room, hands behind her back, she worked the paper out from the ring and surreptitiously slipped it into her mouth. She had barely started to chew when the same Intelligence man raced into the room.

"You're swallowing something, yah," he shrieked. "Stop it; stop it!" But Alice had quickly gulped.

"Only nervousness," she replied as calmly as possible.

Ah, there was Mme. Froggie herself, but what a strange expression on her ugly face.

"I know this girl," said the frog-woman to the detective. "I've had her here a number of times. She has had nothing—but, ach, a beautiful body."

So that was it! Old Mme. Ugly was almost laughable. They were mentally disarming her. Alice kept a straight face.

"I will get you some warm milk, poor child," said the matron. "You must be frightened. It will calm you."

And Alice knew what that would be! An emetic! While the detective raged she appeared to drop the glass accidentally on the floor.

Taken before Charlotte, each girl denied that she knew the other. They continued their denials of any acquaintanceship, here or with other members of any organization, until they were brought before a court martial.

It was circumstantial and hearsay evidence upon which they were convicted, and at the trial much was made of the fact that they were using aliases and passports and travel permits under those aliases. The German counter-espionage system had been busy.

Death for Louise de Bettignies, Alice Dubois, the court martial decreed, and death for Leonie Vanhoutte.

Bravely each girl pleaded that the other be spared, insisting that that the other was innocent. The grim-faced, close-clipped officers of the court martial rejected the pleas coldly.

Somehow the bravery of the girls must have struck a responsive chord, however, in the breast of Germany's General von Bissing. They received a hint that something was in the wind when the governor of the prison refused them permission to spend their last night together—a permission never refused to friends who would face the firing squad at dawn.

"It means," whispered their keeper, "that they do not shoot you in the morning. That is pleasant, nicht wahr?"

Well did the keeper know his procedure. As rain dripped dismally that dawn, another girl spy, the beautiful Gabrielle Petit, with whom they were to have died, was led out toward the prison yard. Above the beat of the rain they heard her voice raised bravely:

"Salut, O mon dernier matin!" It rang out. "Hail, O my last dawn!"

A few days later, to Louise de Bettignier and Marie-Leonie Vanhoutte came word that General von Bissing had commuted their death sentences, Marie to serve 15 years in prison, Louise to serve life—really a sentence of death.

They were transported to Germany and imprisoned at Cologne. Louise's sentence was not to be as long as the Germans had believed. Stricken down by typhus she died in the prison, September 27, 1918, and was buried in a cemetery in Colgne.

Marie was released when the German Republic was declared and the sentences of the Imperials were voided.

After the Armistice, Louise de Bettignier's body was returned to France and there reinterred with military honors and with four medals conferred posthumously—two by the French and two by the British.

Auto Boosters Dine Wednesday

The annual banquet and entertainment of the Automobile Boosters' Club of New England will be held Wednesday evening at Hotel Bradford.

For some weeks several committees have been working on details and at a final meeting reports indicated another big success. President Silvio Amoroso, Vice-president William J. Carberry, Secretary Torrie Vova, Treasurer Edward T. Wolloff, C. R. Crichfield, R. F. Shoaf, Larry Kelly, F. D. Martin and Walter J. Sullivan, directors, are the general committee, with other members directing sub-committees.

Reservations for more than 500 tickets were reported. Attending will be men from the car, truck, oil, accessory and other units of the motor industry.

The entertainment committee reported a program of acts which will last for two hours. Following that will be the awarding of more than 100 prizes.

Hollywood Paragraphs

—By LOUELLA O. PARSONS—

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 13—I had a long talk with John Farrow who has enlisted in the British navy and he tells me that Maureen O'Sullivan, his bride, feels just as he does—that he should go and fight.

His father died of wounds in the last war and his grandfather was also a soldier. Johnny right now is at the height of his career. He's been given "Bill of Divorcement," one of RKO's biggest pictures, and he is looked upon at that studio as one of the most promising young directors.

Johnny was offered an office post, which he refused, since he wants to get in the thick of the fight.

I have been interviewed by Rosalind Russell, and no bonafide reporter ever asked more questions. Roz came over to dinner, brought along a note book, a portable typewriter and really put me through a third degree. You see she is playing a newspaper woman in "My Girl Friday" at Columbia, and she decided since I am turning actress (?) it would be a good idea for her to interview me.

So as soon as she gets around to putting that encyclopaedia full of notes she took into story form we'll print the first interview written by Rosalind Russell, newspaper woman. The amusing part, swell actress that she is, Roz acted her part to an nth degree, never stepping out of character.

P. S. I wasn't so good.

Boston After Dark

By GEORGE HOLLAND

Eleanor Holm and Billy Rose will mister-and-missus at Benny Ginsburg's Dempsey-Vanderbilt Hotel beginning Dec. 15, and they will be alloted the hotel's new four-room penthouse.

CITY COUNCILLOR-ELECT MICHAEL J. WARD, Mrs. Ward and their four-year-old son, Robert take off for a week in St. Augustine today . . . At the Hotel Statler, the piano quartet comprising Salvy Cavicchio, his brother, Dan, Harold Sawyer and Raymond Pugh, are scoring a real hit . . . Pugh is the only regular piano player . . . The others forsook their familiar instruments one day and extemporized on a batch of pianos . . . The combination caught on. Incidentally, "The Blue Danube" is the number 'most requested," at the Statler . . . At the Southland, Charlie Barnet's boys are getting more requests for "One O'Clock Jump" than you'd expect . . . Resemblance of the Barnet style to that of Duke Ellington is noticeable, but Charlie's crew plays louder . . . Del Courtney's band is on the upgrade—fast . . . It bears out a prediction made here a few months ago, when the unit played the Ritz Roof, that it would be.

GLEN MILLER stood the "alligators" in the aisles of Symphony Hall something that is not permitted when the music temple's normal occupants, the Boston Symphony members, are holding forth . . . Not many "alligators," come to think of it, turn out for the Symphony . . . Jimmy McHale returns to the town (Boston) which made him a Page One story for an indefinite engagement at the Westminster Blue Room . . . He was booked originally for Nov. 21 . . . The advertisements merely say "Jimmy McHale and his band opens at the Blue Room" . . . And we thought we were ready for a visita of pink elephants after sighting a headline reading "Zorina Opens at the Old Howard" . . .

NO, IT IS NOT ZORINA, the ballerina . . . She is Hollywood-bound . . . It is—or should be Zorita, a star of another form of art. A good one, too, they say . . . Speaking of Zorina, the title of the show Rodgers and Hart and Gladys Hurlburt were writing for her and Dwight Deere Wiman, the producer, before Zorina skirted the left end of Broadway for Hollywood pay-dirt, was "Nice Work" (and no "if-you-can-get-it") . . . But "Nice Work" was too close to "Nice Goin'", the name of the recent Boston visitor, and Larry Schwab, undersandably enough, declined to change "Nice Goin'" to one of the 20-odd substitute titles offered by Larry Hart in consideration of Schwab's hoped-for co-operation.

Deanna Scores In Difficult Aria

Deanna Durbin in "First Love," her Universal picture now showing on Keith Memorial screen, sings the most difficult lyric soprano aria she has yet attempted on the screen.

The selection is "One Fine Day," from Puccini's opera, "Madame Butterfly." It is the first time this difficult aria has ever been attempted on the screen by a youthful singer, and one of the very few times that any professional singer in her 'teens has ever performed it publicly.

According to Charles Previn musical director at Universal Studios, few singers of Deanna's age have the vocal equipment or the stamina to properly sing "One Fine Day."

"Deanna's voice is now 'full grown,'" Previn states. "It is capable of any lyric soprano selection ever written.

"This year, Miss Durbin's voice is fuller, richer, more mature. Deanna has been singing professionally for three years, and has had five years of professional voice training. The coming years will only make her voice stronger."

Dr. Eddy's Question Box

DOES VIOSTEROL SUPPLY VITAMIN D?

IS SODA HELPFUL IN FIGHTING A COLD?

—By DR. WALTER H. EDDY—
Director of Good Housekeeping Bureau

"My work requires my staying indoors the greater part of the day, so I get very little sunlight. Is viosterol fully as effective as sunlight in curative properties and in supplying the necessary vitamins?"
P. R. D.

The effect of sunlight on the use of lime by the body is due mainly to its ability to create vitamin D in the body; consequently, if one can not get sunlight, any reliable source of vitamin D will supply the missing factor, and viosterol is a perfectly reliable source.

Do not forget, however, that out-door exposure to sunlight includes many other health factors besides vitamin D. The fresh air you breathe, the exercise you get while indulging in the sunlight, and probably many other factors about which we still know little, mean that vitamin D is not the sole contribution made by the sun's rays to our health.

VITAMIN D is the anti-rachitic vitamin, because its absence results in rickets. It is obtained by free exposure to sunlight and by the inclusion in the diet of cod liver oil.

Soda for Colds

"My daughter has been in the habit of taking one-half teaspoonful of soda in a glass of water whenever she feels a cold coming on, or when she becomes constipated, and has found it very beneficial. Lately a friend told her it was harmful to take soda so often."
V.

Some experts in the field of cold treatment are recommending the use of mild alkalies as part of the means of counteracting a cold, hence your use of soda is quite in line with modern practice. Soda is also useful to counteract the acids produced in stomach fermentation.

Magnesia can also be used for this purpose since it, too, neutralizes acids.

I can see nothing harmful in the occasional use of soda as your daughter uses it. Obviously, in cases of constipation, suitable treatment can be applied only when one knows the cause of this disorder.

Little Slips Make Social Failure

Nearly every nice-looking girl gets a chance socially—an invitation to a smart party, a prominent home. But not two chances—if her manners fail to pass the test of good society!

How her supper host winces if she refuses a second helping by saying "lobster doesn't agree with me" or "I'm full."

Inexcusable for her to discuss her indigestion at the table. To refuse a dish she needs only to say a pleasant "No, thank you."

Of course, she doesn't know any better! But a really clever girl would check up on etiquette points before dining out.

Cooking

More Steaks Than Beef

By MARTHA LEE

Quite naturally, most people think of beef when steak is mentioned. But have you ever considered the different kinds of steak you can serve?

There are veal steaks, lamb steaks, ham steaks, and even bacon steaks; and even if you insist on having beef when you cook a steak, you don't have to have porterhouse or sirloin.

There are many inexpensive beef steaks which can be prepared in a variety of ways.

HAM STEAK, BARBECUE SAUCE

1 center slice ham, ¾ inch thick
2 tbsp. dry mustard
2 tbsp. brown sugar
¼ cup vinegar
⅛ tsp. cayenne
⅛ tsp. paprika
2 tbsp. water
2 tbsp. jelly

Brown ham on both sides in hot skillet. Reduce heat, cook slowly until almost tender. Combine dry ingredients, add vinegar, water and jelly, spread on top of ham. Cover, simmer slowly for 15 minutes.

VEAL STEAK, CREOLE

1 veal cutlet, ½-inch thick
Salt, pepper
Milk
2 tbsp. butter
Bread crumbs
1 onion, minced
1 No. 2 can tomatoes
1 green pepper, chopped

Cut cutlet into portions for serving, season with salt and pepper, dip into milk and then into seasoned bread crumbs. Allow to dry for 30 minutes. Melt butter in skillet, cook onion 2 or 3 minutes. Brown steaks slowly on both sides. Add tomatoes and green pepper, cook slowly for 45 minutes.

BACON STEAKS

Have Canadian bacon or smoked pork tenderloin cut in ½-inch slices. Brown lightly on both sides in skillet, cover and cook slowly for 25 to 30 minutes.

MINUTE STEAKS

Select club steaks or pieces of top round cut about ½-inch thick. Cut off ends of club steaks, reserve for stew or meat pie. Heat skillet very hot, brush lightly with suet. Cook steaks 1 to 2 minutes on each side, time depending on rareness desired. Season with salt and pepper. Serve at once with

SAUCE DIABLE

1 tsp. dry mustard
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. cayenne
Few whole black peppers
1 bay leaf
1 bouillon cube, crumbled
1 tsp. vinegar
1 cup tomato juice

Love

And Marriage

One-Way Pocket

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I know a certain young man who is always bragging about his feminine list, but more than once he has been left out of things because he couldn't get a girl. Also he has a one-way pocket. When a crowd of us go together to a movie, or for refreshments after the show, he gets "leaden feet," and makes it his business to be the last one to reach the box-office window, and always lets the other fellow take the check at restaurants.

He doesn't scatter sunshine, and is very clever about handing on his troubles. What do you think of such a person? ON-LOOKER.

Why let him worry you at all? If he has that fatal gift—leaden feet around a box-office window—his next step will be home, where he's likely to remain minus further invitations.

You don't seem to like this young man, so why take such an interest in him?

OF ALL the groups hesitating about planning affairs for Thanksgiving, the Women's Alliance of the First Church in Chestnut Hill had the advantage in setting the date for their annual holiday food sale . . . for Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall is honorary chairman and she undoubtedly had inside State House information on when the Massachusetts Thanksgiving was to be celebrated, even before the date was officially announced . . .

Chestnut Hill women are working busily for the success of the sale to be held the day before Thanksgiving . . . Miss Grace H. Edmands and Mrs. John A. Moir, co-chairmen, will hold a large meeting of their assistants at the latter's home Nov. 20 . . .

Mrs. George S. West is contributing a turkey gobbler raised on her New Hampshire farm, and Mrs. Robert W. Cadets Hold Spotlight

TWO OF THE LARGEST after-the-game celebrations were at Harvard's Hasty Pudding Club and the Balinese Room of the Somerset Hotel . . . Throngs at the Bali cheered for Army songs and even gave a big hand to "Hit the Line for Harvard," but a howl of indignation went up from the Cadets when Harry Marshard struck up "Anchors Aweigh," famous ditty of their traditional rivals, the midshipmen at Annapolis . . .

Barbara Fulton of Boston was in a foursome with Ann Howley of Washington and Cadets Gwynne S. Curtis and Don Thompson . . . The girls jumped into the taxi to accompany the boys down to Copley sq. to see them off on the midnight back to the Point . . .

Sally Clark MacLanahan accented her blonde Dutch cut with a scarlet velvet jacket embellished with gold sequins as she and her husband did a bit of week-end celebrating at a long table with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ely Danielson, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. George Pew . . . Sequins also glittered on Mrs. Danielson's black dinner sweater as well as on her blonde hair . . .

You Can Be Beautiful

'Pinolator' for Colds

By ARLINE GOULD

THERE'S NOTHING like a wheeze and a pain in the sinuses to destroy every vestige of beauty anyone may possess . . . so, while the discovery for today is just a trifle off our beaten path, it certainly has its merits for the beauty-conscious.

It's a smart new contraption called a "pinolator," and with it you can give your cold-troubled membranes a treatment of washed air plus hot aromatic vapors which will make the world right again!

A glass jar is equipped with glass tubes, to be inserted in the nostrils. Through these you breathe in super-heated aromatic water vapors, with actual pine crystals as part of the base, and filtered air.

A simple enough procedure: You just fill the flask two-thirds full of very hot water, not quite boiling. The water should be hot enough to make the flask too hot to hold in the bare hands. Wrap it in a towel. The flask is made of hard flint glass and will not break at high temperatures if you use a little care in filling it. Then you add not more than one drop of the aromatic to the water for a test inhalation.

Then use more or less aromatic, as you wish. The inhalations should be as hot as can be tolerated without discomfort. Inhale through the nostrils, exhale through the mouth. The currents circulate through the nasal sinus and throat areas. For a throat treatment, you replace the nasal tubes with a special throat tube; then breathe in through the mouth, exhaling through the nose. To learn all about the "pinolator" phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days until 5:30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WORLD'S PERFECT

A New Story Daily, Complete on This Page

MR. HARRISON FORTESCUE SMYTHE (not Smith) strode down the Midway, a gloomy contrast to the gay crowds milling about him. His meek, docile face wore a look of intense unhappiness and it might have been said without malice that he resembled a dejected dachshund.

The Cast of Characters in "World's Perfect"

HARRISON SMYTHE, who is altogether too unromantic to win

SALLY BENTON, who cares not for the prosaic.

XANDRA, a snake charmer.

Normally young Mr. Smythe was not addicted to gloom. Earnest, serious, hardly scintillating, perhaps . . . but not morose. He had a car, a radio, a comfortable apartment and was the recipient of thirty-five a week as shipping clerk of the Eberling ("keep the home fires burning with Eberling") Safety Match Company. His melancholia was due to love.

Dully Harrison surveyed the rainbow-like street. He had come to the Fair to forget. He had read somewhere that disappointed lovers always threw themselves into either a river or a round of gaiety, and the latter seemed somewhat less damp. Now he was beginning to doubt his choice.

The picture of Sally Benton was not to be banished from his mind.

Harrison Smythe mentally reviewed the bitter scene of an hour before. It had taken place on the back porch of the Benton home. Very tactfully he had mentioned the thirty-five weekly good reasons why she should marry him, and backed them up with ardent protestations of his affection. All to no avail. Sally had stood, a slim, golden goddess in the moonlight, smiling at him. Her words clung like burrs in his memory.

"You've everything, Harrison," she had said. "Everything a girl should want. A good job, good looks, a sweet disposition. But ——"

"But what?" he had interrupted hopefully. "Just tell me what it is and I'll do all I can to ——"

"It's nothing that can be corrected, Harrison," Sally said. "You're too perfect. I want a man with a past. A man who's reckless, daring, romantic, suave. Like Clark Gable. Some one I'd never be quite sure of, maybe. And that's not you, Harrison."

Harrison Smythe slumped disconsolately. It wasn't his fault that his 26 years had been too full of school, college and the Eberling ("Keep the home fires, etc.") Safety Match Company, to acquire a past. He had an excellent future . . . even the august Mr. Eberling admitted that. But a past . . . How, he wondered, did one go about becoming reckless, daring, romantic.

A mustache and patent leather shoes seemed somehow indicated, yet when one was blessed with generous feet and sandy hair, they could hardly be helpful. Nor could the 35 weekly good reasons purchase either a suave exterior or a mauve-tinted past.

The crowd was thickening, now. Borne along by it, Harrison found himself before a small pavilion, the posters of which portrayed a comely young lady whose sole adornment appeared to be several large and writhing snakes. Blushing modestly, Harrison hastened by.

DARING ADVENTURE

The next object to catch his gaze was the towering parachute jump. Here were thrills, daring leaps into nothingness. Normally Harrison's timid nature would have hesitated before making such a decision. Now, however, he felt that this was a step in the reckless, adventurous direction upon which Sally was so insistent. Drawing himself up to a full five-foot-eight, Harrison approached the huge structure.

before he knew it, he was sitting in one of the swing-like cars, preparatory to being hoisted to the top of the great metal framework. Just as the ascent was about to start, he was aware of another figure climbing into the seat beside him. Cloying perfume, slim, silken legs, a close-fitting dress . . . he had only the briefest sort of a glimpse before they began to rise swiftly from the ground.

Dimly Harrison realized that his companion was feminine and young. His curiosity, however, did not extend beyond that point. A strange and unpleasant sensation had smote him in the midsection. The ground seemed miles away. He felt a sudden affection for the distant earth.

They were at the very top of the tower now. In another moment they would begin the descent. Suddenly Harrison was aware of his companion . . . violently aware of her. The girl was standing, tugging in a highly expert manner at the supporting ropes!

"Hey!" he shouted. "My goodness! What's you trying—"

A sudden, sickening lurch interrupted him. Harrison glanced up, and his heart did an inside loop. The parachute, a tangle of silk and rope, was looped over one of the steel projections of the tower! They were marooned 250 feet from the ground!

"It's all right!" The slim, dark-haired girl sat down complacently. "I used to be a chute jumper before I took up snake dancing."

"Glad to know somebody's heard of me," she sniffed. "This town just doesn't appreciate talent. But wait till tomorrow! All I need is publicity!" She drew a pencil and paper from her purse.

"Publicity! You mean you did this . . . on purpose?"

"Sure," she nodded casually. "Didn't you read about the other couple who got hung up here accidentally? All over the front pages. I decided to try the same thing. There's no danger." She commenced to write, very businesslike. "I am Xandra, the snake dancer. Please notify my public that I will be unable to give my regular performance." She paused, moistening the end of the pencil. "What's your name and business?"

TOO LATE!

The pencil moved briskly across the paper. "H. Fortescue Smythe, executive of the Eberling Match Company and a very dear friend, is with me."

"Executive? Dear friend?" Harrison gasped. "Gracious, you can't say such things——"

"Too late." She dropped the slip of paper, watched it flutter to the ground. "You don't mind helping a poor girl get ahead, do you?"

Before Harrison could reply, a puff of wind swayed the dangling car. He gulped, hung on desperately. Far below a crowd was gathering. Words, shouted through a megaphone, came faintly to his ears.

"Tomorrow morning . . . daylight . . . sit tight . . ."

"Hear that?" The girl's voice was ecstatic. "We'll make all the morning papers! Look! Flashlight bulbs!"

Cautiously Harrison peered over the edge. Camera flashes were popping below, the crowd was growing. He smothered a groan. This was the end. Sally, when she heard, would certainly be through with him. A past was all well and good, but a present, involving snake dancers . . .

Dismally Harrison stared at the brilliant spectacle below. Xandra was waving gaily at the throng, adjusting her skirts to reveal sleek knees. The flash bulbs kept up their barrage.

Endless hours dragged by. Slowly the crowd thinned, the countless lights of the fair flashed off. Xandra, bidding him a gay goodnight, curled up in her corner of the seat and fell at once into an easy sleep. Harrison was left alone with his soul and it may be said that neither of them enjoyed the interview.

That night lingered long in Harrison Smythe's memory. He was haunted by visions of a sudden fall, mangled corpses and yawning graves. And even if he were spared, Mr. Eberling and Sally must be faced. The scandal of it! What would people think! His job, his chances, however slim, with Sally, were lost forever!

With the dawn there came steelworkers, climbing carelessly up to free the parachute. Harrison responded feebly to their cheery hail, Xandra awoke with maddening brightness.

"Morning, Fortescue, dear," she said. "Still grouchy? What you need as a plate of bacon and eggs!"

He shuddered. His life ruined . . . and she spoke of food!

It was after 9 before they gave the all-clear sign. The crowd below was enormous. Xandra made hasty repairs of her makeup.

"Sourpuss," she said scathingly. "You might at least try to act cheerful when we land. I thought when I first saw you that you were the kind of a guy who'd take this as a joke. I'm sorry, now . . ."

A sudden roar from the crowd interrupted her. The parachute was free! Harrison clutched the side of the car, watched the earth rush up to meet them . . .

"PLAYBOY ALOFT!"

Then he was standing on firm ground, with Xander clinging lovingly to his arm, cameras clicking and reporters firing questions. A newsboy brandished a paper with glaring headlines. "Playboy and snake charmer stranded aloft!" Harrison groaned. Playboy . . .

A large, red-faced man was pushing his way through the crowd. With a shudder Harrison recognized Mr. Eberling. The match magnate, however, seemed jovial.

"Harrison, my boy!" he boomed. "Came to see if you got down safely! Wonderful publicity! Eberling Match Company on the front pages! And me thinking you were too shy to ever be more than a clerk! Well, well, still waters run deep! We need a live wire like you in the sales department!" He eyed Xandra appreciatively. "You'll have to introduce me to your friend one of these days!"

Harrison wasn't listening. He was staring at the slim, bright-haired figure which also had materialized from the crowd.

"Sally!" he gasped. "I—I—"

"Oh, Harrison!" she whispered, wide-eyed. "I'm so glad you're safe!" To think that all the time I believed you so quiet, you were really a—a playboy! A man of the world! Only you'll have to promise me to give up all this night life, these dancers, after we're married!"

"After we're—" Harrison could find no words. He gazed with real affection at Xandra, at the parachute jump, at the tall, graceful buildings of the fair. If it hadn't been for all this . . .

"World's Fair?" he murmured, reaching boldly for Sally's hand. "G-gosh, no! Worlds Perfect!"

The work to be done is embraced in the work and will be more fully described in the Contract Specifications and Drawings which may be obtained from the office of the Commission upon deposit of a sum of money which will be refunded to each bidder who submits a bona fide proposal and returns the plans and pamphlet in good condition within ten days after the opening of bids. Plans and pamphlet contain information relative to bidders, forms of proposal, contract and specifications, may be obtained at Room 428 Ashburton Building, 20 Somerset Street, Boston. A deposit of $2.00 will be required for the plans and pamphlet, and if the plans are returned with a bid or the plans and pamphlet are returned before the bids are opened, the deposit will be refunded; otherwise it shall be forfeited. The printed form must be used in making a proposal. The Commission reserves the right to reject any or all proposals or to accept the proposal deemed best for the Commonwealth. W. E. WHITTAKER, Secretary.

YOU CAN GET A LOAN OF $100

IF YOU CAN PAY BACK $6.41 A MONTH

Read how you can borrow promptly and without asking others for help—No credit inquiries of friends or relatives

YOU need money? You can borrow—quickly and in privacy—if you can make small regular payments on your loan. You can borrow for any worthy purpose—to clean up old debts, to meet an emergency, to pay doctor or dental bills, to take advantage of an opportunity.

Suppose you need $100 and can repay $9.75 a month. Your installments will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $6.41 a month for twenty months will also repay a $100 loan.

Choose your own payments

Find the amount of cash you need in the first column of the loan table. Then read across, picking out the monthly payment you wish to make. Note that you may make very small payments if you prefer. Or you may pay larger installments and pay up sooner. See how little your loan costs if you repay in a short time. A loan of $100 repaid in four months costs only $6.32.

Simple to borrow

All you do to get a Household Finance loan is tell us about your needs. We ask for no salary or wage assignment, no stocks or bonds. No credit inquiries are made of friends or relatives. No need to ask your friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. You get your loan promptly and privately.

Get full details without obligation

Last year more than 600,000 men and women found the Household Finance plan a simple solution to their emergency money problems. In cases of sickness or unemployment Household shows the borrower every consideration. Last year Household foreclosed on only one chattel mortgage for each 10,000 loans—an action taken then only as protection against fraud.

Why don't you learn how Household service can help you? There's no obligation if you do not borrow. Phone or visit us today.

Holiday Trade Outlook Is Good

The holiday trade outlook is the best since 1929 . . . Sales are expected to be 8 to 10 per cent greater than the comparatively good season last year . . . With all sections of the country sharing in improvement . . .

RETAIL TRADE . . . Has shown an uptrend practically everywhere during recent weeks . . . And the United Business Service of Boston, after analysis of sales figures, concludes Christmas volume is almost certain to be the largest in 10 years . . . Not only is purchasing power greater but there is a stronger will to buy . . . The latter stems from increased confidence in the general business outlook . . . And, in our opinion, is more important than all the statistical data put together . . . It is the old story of people having what they want . . . And making prosperity real as they satisfy their needs . . .

INGREDIENTS . . . Going into the rosy trade outlook are easily defined . . . Industrial areas will benefit from an 11 per cent increase in employment . . . And a 16 per cent rise in factory payrolls . . . Agricultural areas stand to gain from the 14 per cent rise in farm income . . . Pronounced gains are looked for in higher-priced luxury lines . . . Such as furs, jewelry, expensive apparel and furnishings . . . The United Business survey indicates a late rush for goods is likely . . . Many manufacturers are already near capacity . . . And it will be difficult for retailers to obtain delivery on last-minute orders to cover shortages . . . So take it from financial and industrial observations there is a reason for doing Christmas shopping early . . .

A CORRESPONDENT . . . With an obvious talent for technical market considerations tells us we have placed the column on the spot . . . By taking first a cautious and then a somewhat bearish view of the immediate market outlook . . . And wonders how we can extricate it in the event downside ideas fail to materialize . . . In the first place we are not overly concerned with being on the spot . . . Since it represents the conservative theory of preferring cash to equities at a time of great uncertainty . . . Cash is the hardest thing in the world to "go long of" . . . Stocks can always be bought.

RESERVES OF CASH . . . At present allow for maximum mobility . . . Let prices go where they please and the owner of cash can follow instantly . . . Let's suppose the low levels of September, about 3 to 5 points under last Thursday's closings, are not broken . . . To begin with that would be most unusual . . . Since the lows are one session affairs; therefore rest very rugged . . . But news might bulwark them with large buying orders . . . Then the average will be likely to zig-zag upward in step-like fashion . . . or gradually make a turn of a rounded saucer-like appearance . . . Then downside hopes will be dashed and a switch to buying in order . . .

NOTEBOOK . . . Not much is heard of "war babies" these days . . . Yet we question if they are to be forgotten . . . Disappointment, discouragement and disillusionment have visited buyers during the September pile-up . . . The slow pace of battle contributed but false hopes based on improper evaluating of Allied armament abilities was really responsible . . . U. S. rearmament, however, has been overlooked . . . And for companies such as Colt, Bath Iron and Bliss it should mean much . . . They are our "war babies" . . . And if and when market conditions are right should be bought . . .

Q AND A BOX

F. M. B., Boston . . . Still like aviations, particularly Curtis Wright among the low priced issues . . . But am inclined to put off buying advice during periods of general market strength . . .

H. C., Boston . . . Johns Manville is reported as doing very well . . . Technically we think it has behaved well enough . . . An apparently strong base area was built up over a period of months . . .

L. Mc., Portsmouth . . . Sperry's period of equilibrium could be said to extend back to first of this year . . . Think it could work much higher in the event whole market surges upward . . . Business is largely non-competitive . . .

F. M. W., Belmont . . . Barnsdall is another of those slow moving oils . . . But will have its day before this bull market is done . . . Think it attractive trading or long term investment vehicle . . .

GREYHOUND LINES EARNINGS RISE

CHICAGO, Nov. 13 (AP)—The Greyhound System has reported consolidated net income of $7,950,984 for the first nine months of 1939, compared with $6,498,092 for the like period of 1938.

After deductions for preferred and common stocks of subsidiaries consolidated, the net income applicable to stock of the Greyhound Corporation was $5,315,250, equal to $1.52 a common share.

This compared with $4,391,251, or $1.59 a share, in the first nine months of 1938.

Stock Prices Score Gains in Dull Trading

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (AP)—Slight rising tendencies were displayed by selected stocks in today's market, but many issues did little or nothing.

Trends, a bit spotty at the start, soon leaned toward the recovery side. Volume was small throughout, however, and later the list turned somewhat irregular.

Aircrafts, steels and motors were among the best performers. Rails, coppers, utilities and rubbers held to a narrow course.

Brokers reported some reinstatement of commitments was due to latest European indications that the war may be long drawn out. In addition, domestic business prospects remained as a bar to liquidation.

Foreign securities markets generally did better. Bonds and commodities were moderately mixed.

Market followers studied the survey of the magazine Steel which found that, while buyers of the metal were showing a let-down in immediate needs, they were less active in making forward commitments.

Sharp Gains Scored By European Monies

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (AP)—Sharp gains were recorded for many leading European monies in relation to the dollar today as fear of German invasion of Holland and Belium waned.

Prices moved forward so quickly, foreign exchange dealers said that actual business was small due to the quick change.

Short covering gave the market backbone, bankers said. Many rates had been under severe pressure during the week.

Sterling shot up 7 cents to $3.93½ and the French franc .04 of a cent to 2.23 cents.

The belga, gammered down when Germany was rumored to be on the verge of rupturing relations with the neutral country, gained one quarter at 16.35 cents.

The Canadian dollar, which often mirrors the fortunes of the British pound, gained nearly 2 cents to 88.50 cents.

UNITED DRUG NET $160,955

United Drug, Inc. and its subsidiaries report for the three months ended September 30, 1939, after providing for depreciation, federal taxes and bond interest, net profit $160,955.33, or 11 cents per share.

Net loss for the nine months ending September 30, 1939 amounted to $21,346.71, or two cents per share, on the 1,400,560 shares of capital stock outstanding.

By JACK CONWAY

CHARLEY SPREYER, Harvard back, came through the Army game as the brightest star on Dick Harlow's team. It was the fourth time this season that Spreyer played 60 minutes in a football game.

On performance this season, Spreyer is the top man on the Harvard eleven. He has won the right to play against New Hampshire and Yale. It is unlikely that Spreyer will be kept in the New Hampshire game for long as Dick Harlow will not wish to risk injury to his star back.

Few people who watched Spreyer in the Stadium on Saturday knew that he had a lame leg when he reported for practice on Friday. It was necessary for Spreyer to take special last-minute treatment to get into condition to play.

The brilliant playing of Spreyer further complicates the unusual situation of Torby Macdonald, Harvard captain who has not played since the Penn game. There is one less spot that Macdonald can be moved into if he is given an okay by the doctors for the New Hampshire and Yale games.

Macdonald is anxious to get back into action. He would liked to have played against the Army, but the doctors notified Harlow that the Crimson captain was not in condition to step into the battle.

While Macdonald's ankle has recovered, he has not taken part in many recent practice sessions as a result of his injury. In his present frame of mind, you may expect to see Macdonald working hard this week so as to be named for Saturday's starting lineup against New Hampshire. If the Malden boy gets into the New Hampshire game, he will be a certainty to play against Yale unless he has the misfortune to receive another injury.

Macdonald's Case Interests Harvard

HARVARD STUDENTS are almost as much interested in the case of Macdonald as they are in Harvard's smashing 15-to-0 victory over the Army. It is the general opinion among the students that Macdonald is in condition once more and that he should be permitted to play. It is an unusual situation to have the Harvard captain, who is eager to get into action, on the sidelines while his team clashes with major opposition.

Macdonald and Dick Harlow have been on good terms this Fall, and the coach would naturally like Torby in the lineup if he thought he was able to play as well as he did last Fall.

The Harvard doctors will examine Macdonald again this week, and when they find his condition has been corrected it is likely they will notify Harlow to place Torby back on the active list.

There are people who claim that the Harvard athletic authorities have decided to sidetrack Macdonald on the claim they did not approve of his being elected captain of the eleven. I refuse to accept such a rumor without some evidence.

Harlow naturally wishes to win football games, and he would insist that he be permitted to use every player who is in good standing.

Macdonald may not be as brilliant a player as some of the football writers say he is, but there is no denying that Torby is far above the average run of gridiron stars in the matter of ability. Harvard has not such a wealth of experienced material that it can afford to keep stars on the inactive list.

I believe that Harlow and Bill Bingham are big enough not to permit their personal likes or dislikes to enter into the selection of the Harvard football team.

Dr. Eddie Anderson's Day of Triumph

DR. EDDIE ANDERSON had his day of football glory when Iowa won from Notre Dame by a score of 7 to 6. Dr. Anderson has not only given Iowa a great football team, but he also proved that Notre Dame can be beaten. As a former "Irish" football hero, Dr. Anderson derived more than ordinary pleasure out of defeating the powerful eleven from South Bend.

When at Holy Cross, Dr. Anderson developed brilliant teams. It was with regret that Holy Cross men learned Dr. Anderson had decided to sign as head coach at Iowa.

After agreeing to go to Iowa, Dr. Anderson told Boston friends he at times thought he had made an unwise decision, and that he probably would have made out better if he had remained at Holy Cross. It was with considerable doubt in his own mind about his future that Dr. Anderson entrained for Iowa.

Iowa had been doing very poorly in the Big Ten Conference. There were skepties who claimed that Dr. Anderson could not change conditions.

Dr. Anderson has performed the miracle. He has developed one of the leading football teams of the country as was proved as Iowa nosed out Notre Dame 7 to 6.

While at Holy Cross, Dr. Anderson made many friends. Those newspapermen and photographers who had business that required them to go to Holy Cross were among Dr. Anderson's greatest boosters.

Bill Jones, crack staff photographer, tells how Dr. Anderson would stop a practice session to have his players do stunts for the cameramen. Dr. Anderson never gave his players false ideas about their rights of seclusion. He contended that a college football team belonged to the public as well as to the college that it represented, and that its members should always welcome visitors. We'll keep rooting for Dr. Anderson to keep going places with his Iowa eleven.

HEARST TITLE BATTLES OPEN AT ARENA TONIGHT

By JACK CONWAY

There will be 53 sturdy fighting men in the opening set of trial bouts of the Hearst All-America amateur boxing tournament at the Arena tonight under the auspices of the Irish-American A. A.

This will be the first of four trial tournaments that will lead up to the New England finals to be held on December 11.

In addition to bouts in the open championship classes tonight, there will also be contests for novices in two classes.

The prospect of a trip to California for the Grand National finals in January has given added importance to this years Hearst All-America show.

ENTRY LIST OPEN

Tom Kinney of the Irish American A A announced that despite the large entry list for tonight's tournament the entry list will be kept open until 6 p. m. This will give all boxers who wish to report at the Arena an opportunity to take the physical examination and complete

The opening bout will get underway at 8 o'clock. It is expected that action will continue until shortly before midnight.

Four hours of thrilling bouts are carded between youthful punch flingers eager to gain All-America ring honors.

The tryout bouts are open to all boxers registered with the New England A A. U. Those boxers who have not already registered should do so at once with J. Frank Facey, Secretary, New England A. A. U., No. 36 Prospect st, Cambridge. Only registered boxers will be permited to strive for the All-America titles.

There are four heavyweights entered for tonight's show. They are Albin Tomos, Dorchester; Joseph Zenevich, Bridgewater; Stanley Stranski, Bridgewater, and Joseph Burke, Hyde Park.

MANY NOVICES ENTER

There are also some husky youngsters in the 160-pound open class. They include Lou Vivolo, Boston; Larry Pacino, Roxbury; Joe Banks, Roxbury; Don "Ace" Cremens, Cambridge; Ray Bumpus Bridgewater; Philip Gallette, Revere and Fred McLean, Roxbury.

The 126 and 147-pound novice classes have large entry lists and these divisions add spice to the show.

Gene Driscoll of the New England A. A. U. will keep the show moving along at a rapid clip.

President Herb Holm of the New England A. A. U. is expected to be at ringside to supervise the tournament.

Dobson Ouster Eases Harlow's Maryland Path

BALTIMORE, Nov. 13—Athletic leaders at University of Maryland were jubilant over Dick Harlow's success with his Harvard eleven against the Army as they feel confident Dick will take over Frank Dobson's vacated post as football coach next fall.

Despite repeated denials, it is felt Harlow will come to Maryland.

H. C. Byrd, president of Maryland, is a particularly close friend of Harlow, and has been quite frank in stating he would like the Harvard coach to direct his football team next fall.

Harlow's health has not been 100 per cent while at Harvard, and it is the opinion of his friends that Dick's physical condition would be better if he were located in Maryland.

It is also known that the dispute following the election of Torby Macdonald as Harvard captain was not pleasant to Harlow.

Frank Ryan, publicity director at Harvard and related to Macdonald, later resigned to join Suffolk Downs.

Harvard continues to deny Harlow will not be back as head coach next year, but at Maryand athletic leaders are quite outspoken in stating Dick is headed this way.

Harold T. Johnson, Noted Bowler, Dies

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 13 (AP)—Harold T. Johnson, 41, Rochester, nationally known bowler and secretary of the Rochester Bowling Association, died in Memorial Hospital here of injuries received in an automobile accident west of this city last night.

MAINE HARRIERS FAVORED

It looked like Maine Day today as New England's best intercollegiate hill and dalers converged on Franklin Park for their 27th annual freshman and varsity championships.

Maine, with the great Don Smith as spearhead, was expected to make a sweep of individual and team honors in both varsity and freshman events.

Smith was seeking his fourth straght triumph in this meet. In 1936 he came down from Orono to take individual honors in the freshman race, and in 1937 and 1938 he romped home first in the varsity chase.

RECORD IN PROSPECT

A new course record seemed in prospect for him today because the rock hazards have been eliminated by sending the runners around Schoolmaster's Hill instead of over it.

Dwight Moody, who looks like a future mile champion, was Maine's hope for individual laurels in the freshman event.

Jerry Tatton has a fast group of first year men in Ed Parker, Bill Carroll, Warren Doe, Bob Kodis and Duncan Wallace.

CONNECTICUT THREAT

In the varsity race, University of Connecticut, coached by Ivan Fuqua, former mid-west 440-yard king, was Maine's most dangerous threat for team honors.

Connecticut had two strong runners in Charlie Robbins and Bob Wheaton and other dependables in Newell Johnson, Bill Tribou and Charles Rice, who finished second to Maine's famous Don Smith in the N. E. mile last spring.

Smith's Maine mates whom Conn. will have to beat, are Ken Blaisdell, who was eighth a year ago; Howard Ehrlenbach, who was 24th a year back; Mark Ingraham, 15th in the freshman run last fall, and Dole Butterworth.

IGO OFF FORM

Jimmy Igo of Boston University, victorious in dual meets with Harvard, Tufts, Colby, Worcester Tech and Newton Y. M. C. A. this fall, has been bothered by shin splints of late and is not at his best. He had been figured to be Smith's chief rival for individual honors.

Jack Fredriksen, another B. U. dependable, has not recovered his full strength after a touch of illness.

Tufts, with Bill Atkinson, second last year, and Harold Nygaard, fifth last year, was a top-notch entry, as also were Northeastern, with Dick Carpenter, Paul Durup and Sam Drevitch; New Hampshire, with 108-pound sophomore Warren Jones and Capt. Ted Underwood, and Tech, with Capt. Dan Crosby.

NO SCORE—Apps (10) and Drillon (12) of Toronto Maple Leafs fall to the ice in a mixup with Coulter (2) and Hiller (8) of the New York Rangers as Drillon tries to drive the puck into the Rangers' net in the first period of New York's first National Hockey League game of the season at Madison Square Garden. The puck was blocked by Goalie Kerr of the Rangers, who is sprawled flat in front of his net. The puck can be seen above Kerr's extended right hand. Leafs won, 1 to 0.

76 PASSES IN GRID GO

ABILENE, Tex., Nov. 13 (AP)—Hardin-Simmons and West Texas State football teams threw 76 passes. Now Herbel Schooley, Hardin-Simmons publicity director, says he can't find this ever was surpassed.

Hardin-Simmons won 18-13. Foster Watkins of West Texas pitched 37 passes, including two for touchdowns, while Owen Goodnight and L. B. Russell of the Cowboys completed 19 out of 39.

All five touchdowns were directly the result of passes.

Grid Ads Urge Fans Stay Home

DURHAM, N. C., Nov. 13 (AP)—Although all tickets for the Duke-North Carolina football game Saturday have been sold since November 1, advertisements of the game appeared in state newspapers today.

But the ads didn't urge people to attend—they urged them to stay home.

"All tickets sold," the ads read. "It is requested that only those who now have tickets plan to attend the game. No standing room tickets will be sold."

Shore Joins Bruins For Garden Opener

Major league hockey teams got into their schedules this week, with nine games scheduled, three involving the champion Bruins who open the Boston season tomorrow night at the Garden against the Chicago Blackhawks.

Bruins then play a Thursday game in Montreal against Les Canadiens, and a Sunday night game in Chicago.

The highlight tomorrow night at the Garden will be Eddie Shore's return to active play with the Bruins, though his contract only calls for him to start playing home games on Dec. 15. Eddie is anxious to aid the club to break its losing string and is in top form to help it turn the trick.

HAWKS COMPETENT

The Bruins' opener against the Hawks is awaited in high interest. The Chicago team is a much more able unit than finished last campaign in the cellar. Paul Thompson has made effective changes and the Hawks come up this season with better all around strength than in recent years.

The first defense of Art Weibe and Si Seibert in front of Mike Karakas, the veteran goaler is one of the best in the league, and Thompson feels that Joe Cooper and Desse Smith will give good relief.

The first forward line of Cully Dahlstrom center, Joffre Desilets right wing and Johnny Gottselig left wing should be a fine scoring combination.

The second line with Bill Thoms centering for Bill Carse and Mush March is a good line, and the Hawks are working hard on the third line which has Ab DeMarco, George Allen formerly of the Rangers and Les Cunningham. The Hawks are not Stanley Cup contenders yet, but they will be a much harder team to beat this year.

ROSS UNWORRIED

The Bruins, as defending world champions, and in view of their exceptional record a year ago, are regarded by many hockey fans as invincible, and there was great consternation a week ago when the Bruins lost an opening game to Toronto, 5-0, being scored on the second minute of play and again in the seventh minute, when they were short-handed.

Three breakaway goals ran up the score.

Red Wings Conquer Bruins by 2-1 Count

DETROIT, Nov. 13 (AP)—The Bruins suffered their second straight defeat of the National Hockey League season here when they went down, 2 to 1, before the Detroit Red Wings.

It was Detroit's first victory of the year and its initial triumph ove rthe Bruins since the 1937-38 campaign.

The Wings, who had been beaten and tied before the Bruins' game, took the lead, never to give it up, early in the second period when Cecil Dillon, purchased by Detroit from the New York Rangers, took a double relay from Ken Kilrea and Carl Liscombe and beat Goalie Frankie Brimsek.

In their third period Boston sent five men down the ice frequently in a vain effort to score, and Detroit took advantage of this strategy when Ken Kilrea and Jimmy Orlando engineered a scoring play.

The Bruins, who were shut out, 5 to 0, by Toronto in their opening contest, got their first goal of the year two minutes and 33 seconds before the end, Milt Schmidt and his mates of the "sauerkraut line," Woody Dumart and Bobby Bauer, executing a fine play. Schmidt fired the puck.

NO. 21 IN TUESDAY'S RECORD

The Monday Morning Quarterback

By BILL GRIMES

There were so many upsets throughout the country on Saturday that the operators of the college football "books" aren't paying off anyone today but their "runners."

The prognosticators who played the "books" guessed wrong on Notre Dame, Army, Dartmouth, Michigan, Wisconsin, Northwestern, Villanova, Kentucky, S. M. U. and St. Mary's.

The more conservative didn't do so well picking Bowdoin, Catholic University, Detroit, Cincinnati, Vermont and Rhode Island State.

Anyone who had seen Army realized that Harvard had an even chance of winning its first major game of the season. So, the Crimson's victory over the Kaydets cannot be classified as an upset. Nor could Princetons victory over Dartmouth, for the Tigers were the first team that the Indians of the North played this season with the slightest semblance of ability.

Cleo O'Donnell's St. Anselm's Hawks and Fred Brice's Black Bears of Orono were the New England college elevens to produce outstanding upsets.

HAWKS END BOWL DREAM

The Hawks weren't given an outside chance to beat C. U. The Cardinals came to town with a season record of six victories, no defeats and not even a tie. They were secretly hoping to qualify for a bid to some Bowl but they were ruined by the Hawks, who were really flying high and handsome.

While delivering a talk Friday night, Coach Dutch Bergman lauded Ray McLean, St. Anselm's sensational back, to the skies. Little did the C. U. mentor suspect that McLean was to score five touchdowns and that his Cards were to be snowed under to the extent of 39 to 13.

The University of Maine Black Bears staged a great comeback when they prevented Bowdoin from winning the Pine Tree State title. Prior to taking on the Polar Bears at Orono on Saturday, Maine had lost two state championship games. In the first round they were beaten by Bates and a week ago Saturday fell before Colby.

The Black Bears came from behind to pave the way for Al McCoy's Colby Mules again to tie Bowdoin for the state title. A first period fumble which was recovered on Maine's eight-yard line set the stage for Bowdoin's six points. Ed Barrows, son of the Governor of Maine, scored both of the Polar Bears' touchdowns.

EAGLES GREAT

Due to the sensational brand of football they played against Auburn and Detroit, the Boston College Eagles are entitled to far more support than they have been tendered this season.

It requires a great eleven to beat Auburn and Detroit on successive weekends. The Eagles came from behind to take Jack Meagher's Plainsmen, scoring two touchdowns in the last eight minutes of the fourth quarter. Although they were never behind last Saturday, Gus Dorais' Titans kept the pressure on until the final whistle.

SUPERB HANLEY JOB

Big John Yauckoes saved the day for the Eagles by intercepting a second down pass on his own goal line with two minutes to play.

The B. C.-Detroit tilt was a rugged affair. Henry Toczylowski, a very clever field general, and George Kerr, a veteran guard, were injured and may not be able to play for a fortnight. Both retired from the firing line before the close of the battle with leg injuries.

Pat Hanley did a great job maneuvrering an undermanned Boston University eleven to a 13 to 6 victory over University of Cincinnati. Jimmy Cassidy, Attleboro boy, stole the spotlight by returning a punt 75 yards for the first Terrier touchdown.

Wesleyan captured the Little Three title by defeating Williams by two touchdowns and now that Norwich has held Vermont to a scoreless tie, Middlebury seems to have the inside track on the Green Mountain State championship race.

Holy Cross encountered its stiffest opposition of the fall while beating Temple, 14 to 0.

Bruno Malinowski was the key man of the Crusaders' offense. The giant fullback turned in his best performance of the season. As a general thing the Owls stopped the other Holy Cross ball carriers, but big Bruno had too much power for them.

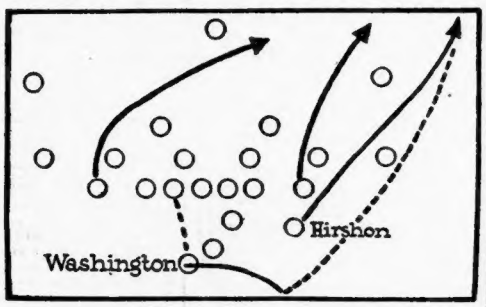
PURPLE HIDES STUFF

Malinowski carried the ball only once in the first period and on that rush he went six yards. During the second and third periods he did most of the ball toting and his plunges and off tackle slants netted Holy Cross 95 yards.

Although the outcome of the game was in doubt until they scored their second touchdown late in the final period, the Crusaders did not open up. In fact, they used only four plays all afternoon, which accounts for the heavy duty the fullbacks were called upon to perform.

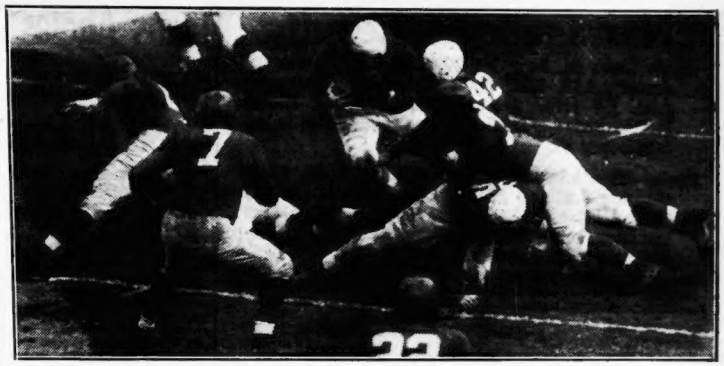
Tom Barry is lost to Holy Cross for the remainder of the season. In the first period, Barry crashed into the Temple interference on a sweep directed at his flank and received a compound fracture of his left leg.

Then, later in the game, Center Si Titus, one of the most important cogs of the Holy Cross defense, was removed from the battle with a torn cartilage and it's doubtful if he'll see any more service this fall.



Uclan's Touchdown Bomb

This U. C. L. A. pass from Kenny Washington to Harold Hirshon was good for 60 yards and a touchdown against Southern California. The play started like an end run. The Bruin right end went downfield, with Hirshon (right halfback) streaking far downfield, while Washington faked a run and took up much time to allow receiver to get down under pass.



NO, YOU DON'T—Mel Hein of the Giants, No.7, back to camera, is the Johnny-on-the-Spot as he gets ready to flatten Halfback Faust, No. 53, of the Chicago Cards in Polo Grounds. Hein was standout here, as Cards' four attempts failed to score from four yards out in first period. Giants won, 17 to 7.

Five Teams In Running For Pro Title

CHICAGO, Nov. 13 (AP)—It begins to look more and more like a photo finish in the National Professional Football League.

Five teams still are in the running for the pro title with only three weeks remaining in the season, including the Chicago Bears, thrice-beaten but still having an outside chance to tie Detroit Lions and Green Bay Packers for Western Division honors.

The Bears, defeated on successive week-ends by New York Giants and Detroit Lions, got up off the floor to administer a beating to Green Bay a week ago and followed up with a 23-to-13 victory over Detroit.

LIONS, PACKERS TIED

A crowd of 42,684 at Detroit roughly a third of the 123,304 customers at four games Sunday, saw the Bears take a lead in the second period and win going away.

The Lions connected in 20 of 37 passes, but the aerials were none too effective in Bear territory.

The defeat left the Lions and Green Bay, 23 to 16 victor over Philadelphia, tied for first place in the Western Division with six wins and two losses. The Bears are a half game behind with one more setback.

Washington and New York maintained their dead heat for Eastern Division honors. The Redskins stormed over Brooklyn for a 42 to 0 victory, and the Giants turned back the Chicago Cards, 17 to 7, with a minimum of effort.

The remaining schedule of the five contenders:

Detroit—Cleveland, Washington, Green Bay.

Green Bay—Brooklyn, Cleveland, Detroit.

Chicago Bears—Philadelphia, Chicago Cardinals.

New York—Pittsburgh, Brooklyn, Washington.

Washington—Chicago Cardinals, Detroit, New York.

Thus it appears almost a certainty that the division winners will not be decided until final games of the season, with the possibility that one or both of the division races may wind up in a deadlock.

90 YARDS ON KICKOFF

Davey O'Brien's aerials kept the Eagles in the game with Green Bay until a third period touchdown clinched the decision, the Packers adding a field goal in the fourth for good measure.

TERRIER IRON MEN POINT FOR EAGLES

Boston University's surprising eleven settles down today for their last home appearance of the year, against Boston College at Fenway Park next Saturday afternoon. The Terriers by whipping Cincinnati on Saturday now boast four victories against two defeats, one win more than they chalked up last year.

Naturally, few are giving the Terriers any chance against the Eagles. Exceptions are the Hanleymen themselves who refuse to believe that any club is their superior.

Against Cincinnati, the Terriers faced a powerful outfit that had a 15-pound weight advantage to a man and plenty of reserve strength.

Against this formidable opposition Coach Pat Hanley was forced to play Captain Paul Sullivan, Joe Lanata, Sid Michaels, Charley Cremens and George Murphy sixty minutes.

Statistics showed that the Bearcats ran up and down the field all day but fail to reveal that Cincinnati never could get inside the 20 yard line except for the touchdown drive.

Hanley was more than satisfied with his charges and the fact that none of the boys came out of the game injured also helped greatly.

Chances are that there will be no changes in the Terrier starting lineup for the Eagle encounter. Jim McDonald and Ray Nedham, veteran lineman, will in all probability watch the game from the bench as a result of knee injuries sustained in the Manhattan clash a week ago last Saturday.

TOUGH ASSIGNMENT

Sid Michaels and George Murphy, who filled in for the injured stars, played great football against Cincinnati but the task of a 60-minute asignment against Boston College is far from easy.

If the center and left end assignments could be divided, with McDonald and Needham available, the Terriers would have a chance of crashing through with a major upset.

B. C. Works for B. U. Hindered by Injuries

Gleaned from conversation with some of the participants in Saturday's affair were reports of injuries which overtook Henry Toczylowski, George Kerr, Joe Manzo and Gene Goodreault, the stupendous line play of John Yauckoes and the latter's timely next-to-the-last-play interception of a Titan pass on the B. C. two-yard line, and the stern battle which the Eagles had.

The injuries to Manzo and Goodreault are not considered serious, but those which Toczylowski and Kerr carried are expected to keep them out of this week's clash with Boston University.

Manzo bumped the same knee which prevented his playing in the Temple, St. Anselm and Auburn games; Goodreault hurt his side, Toczylowski bruised his shin bone and turned his ankle and Kerr took a terrific wallop on the side of his knee.

From all accounts, the Detroit clash was the toughest ordeal the Eagles have found themselves in all season, but one sure to give them confidence for the three coming games. After Boston University is met this week-end, Kansas State, which lost to Oklahoma by but 13-10 last week, will be played the following Saturday, and then will come the traditional slash with Holy Cross.

Whirlwind Sets Experts on Heads

Ex-football experts paraded to the wailing wall over the week-end, with the Boston American selectors among the vanguard. Saturday's many upsets knocked cocksure grid handicappers from lofty perches in all corners of the land of the free.

Dave Glueck was top man Saturday, with only three errors, and he was the sole American picker who KNEW that Dr. Eddie Anderson's Iowa would kayo Notre Dame. Moreover, he gave Iowa a point margin, just what it had.

Frank Moynihan had a pretty good day, too, with only four misses, and he and Glueck were the only ones who KNEW that Princeton was going to beat Dartmouth. Bill Grimes was next, with five wrong selections. Jack Conway, Herb Finnegan and Will Connell flopped on six games, as did Old Man Consuns, while Fred Lane stumbled seven times.

Probably it was good for the boys' vanity to have a tough week-end, ennyhoo. After several winning weeks, they'd been getting to imagine they were psychic or something, and were becoming office grid bores.

Texas Aggies Forget Aerials, Crush All Foes

BRYAN, Tex., Nov. 13 (AP)—The Texas Aggies are bringing a new type of football to the Southwest Conference, a hard-hitting, bone-crushing variety that is the very antithesis of the pass-crazy game associated with this section the past 10 years or so.

The ponderous and orthodox team that shoved Southern Methodist aside on a muddy field Saturday and registered its eighth straight victory could move right into the Big Ten tomorrow though it would be a litt'e hard on the other members of that conference.

Coach Homer Norton, frankly, is making the experiment with some trepidation. A generation of fans has grown up in Texas to like its football rich, rare and racy, and Homer still isn't sure the customers are going to fancy this new close-to-the-vest policy.

VICTORIES POPULAR

But he need not worry too much. Victories have a way of making themselves popular, however they are accomplished, and Norton has come up with a bunch of crushers who are likely as not to dominate the southwest again next season, despite the fact Conference history does not list a repeater.

Though there is nothing at all spectacular about its offense, unless it is the vicious blocking ahead of John Kimbrough and John Connatser, the A. & M. team is an impressive outfit. It is big, exceptionally fast for its size, and it hits like a pile-driver.

Without much doubt it is one of the year's really fine teams, and it will lose only one regular by graduation.

Previous to this team, it has been explained by several Southwest Conference coaches in recent days, it has been plain suicide for one of them to play for a single touchdown and then try to protect it. They learned through sad experience.

PRODUCE DEFENSE

But the Aggies this year produced a defense, both against running attack and passes, that has enabled Coach Norton to cut the foolishness down to a minimum.

They attempted only one pass against Southern Methodist, and Norton didn't know why in the world his quarterback did even that. This, the reader must realize, is truly revolutionary in this section, where more than 50 aerials in a game is not uncommon.

For the benefit of Tulane, which now looks like the probable opponent of the Aggies in the Sugar Bowl game at New Orleans, the style of the Aggies is fairly simple. They tackle so hard it hurts clean up in the stands. Sooner or later, the man they tackle is going to lose the ball and, temporarily, his interest in the ball game.

The Aggies fall on the ball, and then they give it to Kimbrough to carry for a touchdown. Though there will be argument whether he is the best fullback in the nation, Big John almost certainly is the most valuable to his own particular team. He doesn't go so far, but he goes steady, and he is a giant on defense.

College Grid Leaders In for Major Tests

It appears likely that more things will be settled definitely about college football teams next Saturday than on any one day all this season, according to the Associated Press.

The center of football power, which has been moving steadily southward this year, shifted toward the midlands last week-end, with Oklahoma and Missouri in the leading roles.

Decisive games in all quarters this week should either give some definite sign as to where that center will wind up or at least show which teams will have a hand in the final decision.

The elimination of Notre Dame and Catholic University from the unbeaten and untied list were only incidents in the shift of power, which saw Oklahoma, Missouri, Iowa, Ohio State, Georgia Tech, Clemson and Santa Clara move up to threaten the powers that be.

IOWA WRECKS IRISH

It was Iowa, which stopped a great Irish winning streak back in 1921, that did the trick again Saturday by a 7 to 0 count as Nile Kinnick put on a great show in his fifth consecutive 60-minute game. Catholic U. was a real upset victim, losing 39-13 to little St. Anselm.

These defeats reduced the list of unbeaten and untied leaders to Cornell, Duquesne, Texas A. and M., and Tennessee, with San Jose State of California, winner of 10 straight, and Colorado Mines thrown in for good measure.

Tied but undefeated are Georgetown, Rutlers, Oklahoma, North Carolina, Tulane, Richmond, Southern California and U. C. L. A. They're mostly looking better with every game, but so are a lot of once-beaten teams. Duke, Mississippi, Baylor and even Southern Methodist might be added to this list although they didn't prove it last week.

This week's program of decisive battles in various sections shapes up, briefly, something like this:

East: Cornell-Dartmouth is this week's biggest eastern game by all odds. Cornell, sharing with Duquesne the unbeaten-untied ranking in the east, hasn't added to its stature much in two successive close calls.

The Big Red team just did skim by Colgate, 14-12, after belting the Red Raiders all over the lot in the first half. Dartmouth took its first defeat, 9-7, at Princeton's hands. Both are aiming to come back to the "Ivy League" title, and as natural rivals will have double incentive.

Duquesne takes the week off after its 7-0 win over North Carolina State at Raleigh.

Georgetown, seeking its second stright undefeated season, follows its 20-0 win over Maryland with an encounter with deflated New York University, 20-7 victim of Missouri.

Holy Cross, like Boston College back among the Eastern leaders despite an early-season intersectional loss, shipped Temple 14-0 and faces Carnegie Tech, 6-0 victim of Pitt. Army, routed 15-0 by Harvard, plays Penn State.

OLDEST RIVALRY

The Princeton-Yale rivalry, oldest continuous series in football, takes its usual leading spot even though the Elis were only good enough to tie Brown, 14-14.

In the intersectional line, Pitt takes on Nebraska; Pennsylvania, 10-0 upset victim of Penn State, meets Michigan. Fordham, 13-0 winner over Indiana, has its annual tussle with St. Mary's; Columbia, which beat Navy 19-13, bumps into the mighty Tulane team which defeated Alabama 13-0.

South—If the Southern Conference title isn't decided by this week's Duke-North Carolina game, it probably never will be, for Clemson and Richmond both have chances to tie the survivor.

Though Duke was beaten by Pitt and Carolina tied by Tulane, they have clean records in the conference. The Blue Devils warmed up for the crucial contest by beating Virginia Military 20-7 while the Tar Heels whipped Davidson 32-0.

Clemson, 20-7 winner over Wake Forest, takes on Southwestern Tennesse in a breather while Richmond, after stopping Virginia Tech 13-0, meets Hampden-Sydney. Only other conference games are Maryland-V. M. I. and North Carolina State-Furman.

Tennessee, whose biggest gun, George Cafego, was hurt in a 34-0 rout of The Citadel, returns to Southeastern Conference competition against Vanderbilt, which finally broke into the winning column by beating Sewanee 25-7.

Georgia Tech, which moved into a tie for the Conference lead with Tennessee and Tulane by beating Kentucky 13-6, encounters the tough Alabama team, and Auburn, 10-9 intersectional winner over Villanova, meets Louisiana State in other Conference tilts.

Mid-West: The week's gridiron "natural" is Oklahoma vs. Missouri, the game that likely will settle the Big Six championship and bring the winner a flock of Bowl invitation. Kansas State-Iowa State is the other Conference pairing, while Kansas plays George Washington.

There's no way of deciding the Big Ten title without considering Ohio State, which had only a light workout in beating Chicago 61-0. The Buckeyes' next opponent is Illinois, whose Jimmy Smith led the way to a 7-0 victory over Wisconsin.

IOWA IN TOUGH SPOT

Iowa, very much in the picture after that Notre Dame victory, meets Minnesota, which recovered its old-time form to wallop Michigan 20-7. Notre Dame, hardly disgraced, starts its comeback against Northwestern, 3-0 victim of Purdue.

Southwest: The Southwest Conference had its "biggest" game with Texas A. and M. edging out Southern Methodist 6-2 in a rain-drenched thriller. From here in the Aggies shouldn't have many troubles, although Rice, often beaten and held to a 12-12 tie by Arkansas, is in a good spot to spring an upset Saturday.

Pacific Coast—Southern California forged to the front in the Pacific Coast Conference by whipping Stanford 33-0 while U. C. L. A. was idle. This week it's the Uclans' turn to show their strength as they play Santa Clara, which beat Michigan State 6-0 for its third straight major victory.

U. S. C. is rated by far the stronger of those two title contenders but it won't be proved until they meet Dec. 9. Meanwhile third-place Oregon State, which beat Oregon 19-14, faces California, beaten by Washington 13-6 for its fourth conference defeat and Washington State meets Stanford.

Joe & Asbestos

BROCKTON EARNS 'CHAMPION' RATING

By MICHAEL GILLOOLY

By no means climbing out on a long limb, Brockton high school might just as well be conceded the state championship for the 1939 season right now after its grand victory over Manchester Central.

From here in, it looks like a battle for second place money with the title stored and packed away.

If you've had any doubts from previous encounters as to the titular rights of this club, all these were dispelled as Central suffered its first defeat of the campaign while having its goal line crossed for a pair of touchdowns, ruining its unscored upon record.

FINDS NEW STARS

Whereas, in other tilts the Shoe City club appeared to depend on the battering-ram power of Billy Gold and the elusiveness of Bernie Lanoue, Coach Charlie Holden proved the versatility of his eleven beyond all denying in unveiling a new pair of heroes.

Jim Dodero, place-kicking artist, whose end play ranks with the smoothest of any wing in the state, started the Manchester team on its way to the doghouse, while John Tamulevicz completed the banishment in setting up the field goal that sent Brockton into the lead and then the second touchdown.

And so Brockton returned to the Bay State to prepare for Somerville's invasion of Eldon Keith field, Saturday. Rogers high of Newport, R. I., follows on the schedule before the traditional game with Waltham on Thanksgiving Day.

BROCKTON "IN"

Somerville should put up a stubborn front as will Rogers and Waltham but it appears useless. The Shoe City club is "in."

Lawrence and Medford kept pace in the battle for the runnerup position. Mark Devlin's boys, with John Callaghy heaving passes all over the lot, had little trouble with Haverhill and should find St. James an equal popover this week end.

The Mystics' slim triumph over Waltham may be the warning before the fall which is the expected fill of a loaded schedule. With a high stepping Arlington team due at Fulton st. grounds, Saturday, Medford might find its undefeated record ruined.

Arlington banged Somerville about Dilboy field in decisive manner proving that its one-sided victory over Waltham was no freak. On comparative scores, Coach Fred Ostergren's outfit stands a fine chance of spoiling Medford's unbeaten slate.

The Boston schoolboys continue their warfare at the Bee Hive in one of the most jumbled title races in years. Last week, English, twice tied by city schools, pushed an over confident Mechanic Arts from its high standing to throw the race into turmoil.

Young Harvard Team Braced by Victory

By DAVE GLUECK

Harvard's younger football set lived up to pre-season predictions of brilliant potentialities, and effectively gave the lie to prophets of Crimson grid doom, by decisively beating a hard-hitting Army team, 15 to 0.

This desperately-needed victory should give the boys enough lift and confidence to carry them through the rest of the season in style. With the difficult sophomore initiation over, next year, the near future looks bright enough to fully warrant continuance of the "$3.30 a seat" policy.

Statistics as well as the proof of play back up this future. Of the eleven starters, only two will be lost by graduation.

HEALEY SAVES GAME

Tom Healey, senior tackle who played a magnificent game Saturday, will be very difficult to replace. Stopping cadet ball-bearers all over the field, he kept his younger mates from going to pieces in the first half when Army started to roll.

Bill Coleman, first blocking back in Harlow's Harvard regime, versatile enough to catch passes and carry the ball, will also be missed, but Stahley's freshman team has enough material to fill these gaps.

All the other boys who took part in the game have at least one more year of play. Eight of them will be eligible for two more years.

Of these eight, Ayres, MacKinney, Miller, Heiden and Spreyer played 60 minutes, Phister, Peabody and Lee were the other youngsters who took part. Coleman, Healey and Lovett also went the route for Harvard.

HARLOW LAUDS STARS

There are plenty of capable Crimsons to carry on at Soldiers Field in the next two years, and if some of them fall by the wayside, there will still be over 11 left, which is apparently all that are needed under the Harlow system.

When the massive mentor was at Western Maryland, one of his freshman teams traveled to Annapolis with a squad of 13 and beat the Navy plebes.

After Saturday's game, Harlow named Hatch and Dubuisson as outstanding for Army. Of his own men, he thought Charlie Spreyer and Joe Gardella, the Berlin-Rome axis, were exceptional.

"Although all the boys played well, I guess we always think that when we win," said Harlow.

Spreyer was back "at large" for the Crimson. From his "tail" position he did all the passing, punting, and play calling. He also carried the ball more than any one else, 27 times for 106 yards, or an average of 3.9 a crack.

Gardella carried eight times for 53 yards, or a six plus average. Spreyer completed six of nine attempted passes, and all he needs, says Harlow, is more practice to make him a consistently potent aerialist.

With the Crimsons rapidly picking up savoir faire, and the doctors unable to keep Captain Macdonald on the injured list any longer, the rest of the schedule, New Hampshire and Yale, shapes up like the two openers.

The big question is just where on the team Captain Torb will find a place. Spreyer seems perfectly suited for tailback, the captain's old spot. It is doubtful that Harlow will move him, so Macdonald will probably go to wingback, with Gardella, and Lee may be shifted back to tail as Connecticut Charlie's understudy.

Add post game minutes . . . Gardella, who had his nose broken for the umpteenth time, sitting on a rubbing table ruefully regarding smiling Spreyer who came through 60 minutes unscathed . . . Vern (mash) Miller, another iron man, wearily stripping the armor from his huge body . . . Miller refuses to get on the scales, arbitrarily tells the weight keeper that he's 250 . . .

Ray McLean Scoring Star

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (AP)—An unsuccessful venture into midwestern territory cost Bill Sheridan, fleet halfback of Clarion, Pa., Teachers the eastern football scoring lead last week.

Sheridan, as usual, was his team's whole attack, but Clarion took a 26-7 licking from Hiram of Ohio. The seven points brought Sheridan's total to 81 for seven games this season. Meanwhile Captain Sam Hammerstrom, Union College's plunging fullback, scored 27 points against Rochester and climbed to first place with an 86 point total.

The day's outstanding scoring star, however, was rambling Ray McLean of St. Anselm, the little New England team that knocked Catholic University out of the unbeaten ranks.

McLean scored five of his team's six touchdowns and jumped into fourth place in the eastern rankings with 55 points, five less than Walt Wilson of West Liberty in West Virginia.

Willson's teammate, Bechtold, continued to lead in booting points after touchdowns, connecting for his 15th and 16th of the season against Potomac State. Jim Turner of Holy Cross also made two for a second-place total of 13.

NATS SEEK FARM

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 13 (INS)—Purchase of the Toledo baseball franchise in the American Association will be attempted tomorrow by Joseph Cambria, scout for the Washington Senators of the American League, it was revealed here tonight.

Dom DiMag Aids Chances of Red Sox

Boston's baseball fans were jubilant today, following announcement that the Red Sox have purchased Dominic DiMaggio from the San Francisco Seals.

The acquisition of DiMaggio gives the Sox another competent outfielder, who braces the general strength of the team, even if the pitching problems of the Hose still are unsolved.

General Manager Eddie Collins announced the purchase of DiMaggio, brother of Joe DiMaggio, American League's No. 1 batter, and pitcher Larry Powell, from the Seals. Another brother, Vince DiMaggio, formerly of the Bees, now is a Cincinnati gardner.

Collins said a "sizeable chunk" of money was paid for DiMaggio, voted the most "valuable player" in the Pacific Coast League.

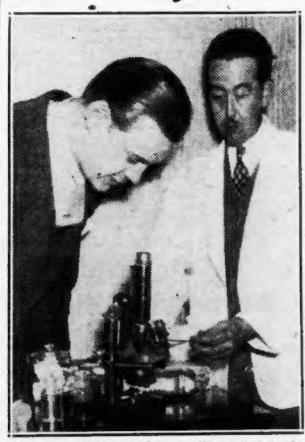
Dominic is the youngest of the DiMaggio ballplayers—all center fielders—but gives promise of equalling the feats of his brother Joe.

The oldest is Vince, who had been sent to Kansas City last winter after failing to make good with the Bees because of weak hitting, before joining the Reds.

The youngest DiMaggio, who plays with eyeglasses, broke in in 1937 and hit for .306. His batting in 1938 was .307 and last season was .361.

Powell, who will remain with San Francisco another year and go to Boston in 1941, won 12 games for the Seals last season and lost 11.

Radio Announcer's Hair Problem Solved By John E. Warner



BOSTON, Nov. 12, (J.W.) — Bob Perry, whose voice is known to thousands of listners on the 920 Club over station WORL, says of John E. Warner's treatment: "I no longer fear bladness—because I know that your treatments have put my hair and scalp in a really healthy condition, and I am sure that with your good advice on the care of my hair—I will always be able to retain it. I can sincerely recommend your service to any man who wants to save his hair." John E. Warner is showing Bob Perry some of the bacteria which cause hair loss. 85% of all baldness is due to local scalp conditions which can be corrected and checked if caught in time. Each week hundreds of men are saving and improving their hair through the Warner method of treatment in one of the largest and best equipped offices of this kind in the world. Many celebrities of the stage, screen and radio have come to John E. Warner because his treatment is acknowledged to be the most scientific and effective known. The Warner offices are conveniently located at 515 Washington St., Boston, opposite R. H. White's, near the corner of West St. There is no charge or obligation for a private examination. No case is ever accepted for treatment unles beneficial results are certain. Fees for treatment are moderate. There is a separate dept. for women—hours 10 A. M. to 8 P. M. daily; Saturdays to 6 P. M.
